House rejects state reorganization bill

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — A compromise bill to reorganize state government was overwhelmingly rejected today in the Missouri House.

The motion to approve a conference committee version of the bill received only 22 favorable votes, and 113 against.

The bill will now go back to conference committee for more work.

The Senate passed the bill 290 Friday.

After about three hours of debate Monday, the House recessed without taking any action.

Democratic House members held a closed caucus this morning and discussed the reorganization bill before the House convened.

After the vote, Democratic and Republican House leaders said they didn't like the provision in the bill that department heads couldn't appoint their own division heads. They also said the bill should be changed to make sure revenue department employes come under the merit system.

The legislature has until midnight Friday to pass the reorganization legislation, called for by the voters in August, or the governor can take action by executive order, subject to legislative rejection.

The bill attempts to reorganize 440 state agencies into 13 new departments and the Office of Administration.

Objections during debate Monday centered on the senatorial power of advice and consent over the directors and some division heads, and on several agencies criticis say remain unmanageable under the bill as it now stands.

House and Senate committees spent five months developing separate bills before it went to a joint House-Senate conference committee late in May.

The conference committee adopted its version of the bill by a vote of 7-3.

Reps. Harold Volkmer, DHannibal, sponsor of the original House bill, and Robert Snyder, R-Kirkwood, refused to sign the committee report and said they would fight the bill on the House floor.

Rep. John Scott, D-St. Louis, also declined to sign the report but told the five approving Senate members he would work for its passage.

Monday, Volkmer and Snyder urged House members to return the bill to conference for more work, or kill the bill.

"This bill is an abortion," Snyder said. "It will allow the same sprawling bureaucracy we have now to proliferate."

Snyder and Volkmer centered their objections on the advice and consent powers which they said will disrupt effective administration.

Rep. Joe Holt, D-Fulton, chairman of the House Reorganization Committee, led the defense of the bill on the floor.

Holt said the bill is not perfect but will allow the governor to manage state government if he wants to.

"I don't think the criticis of this bill understand the powers a (department) director has," Holt said of the advice and consent control over gubernatorial appointments.

Snyder criticized what Volkmer calls the "double patronage" system set up in several departments including revenue, which requires bi-partisan staffs with exception of directors, some division heads and secretarial employes.

The bi-partisan staffs are a compromise. The House wanted more employes to come under state merit laws. The Senate defeated that attempt earlier in the session with only two members voting for it.

"We're setting up a personnel monster," Snyder said of the new bi-partisan staffs. He said it would have been better to leave the system as it is until the entire merit system law could be changed.

Apparently the Democratic House leadership felt Monday they had enough votes to pass the bill.

They gave up a chance for a compromise committee meeting Monday night when they called a halt to the debate without a vote and laid it over until today.

Views own grave

Floyd Porter Jr. looks over the spot where he was thought to have drowned early Monday morning. Police and fire department officials searched and dragged Wolf Hole Ditch for hours Monday until Porter reported that he was alive and well. Porter told police that he swam to safety after falling from the railing. He said that by this time a friend who was with him had left to alert police. Porter said he then hitched a ride with two men who took him to Ste. Genevieve. Porter said he then returned to Sikeston where he learned of the search for his body.

Hunt ends; man alive

The search for Floyd Porter Jr., 630 Vernon, ended at 4 p.m. Monday when he turned up alive in Sikeston. Police and rescue workers had been dragging Wolf Hole Ditch southeast of Sikeston since about 3 a.m. Monday for his body.

The dragging operations began when a friend of Porter's, Danny Hyslop of Sikeston, told police that Porter had fallen into the ditch from the Malcolm bridge and had not surfaced.

Porter told police Monday afternoon that he had surfaced, swam to the bank and dragged himself out of the water, only to discover that Hyslop had already left.

Porter said he walked to Interstate 55 and was picked up by two men who drove him to St. Genevieve and robbed him of $55. Porter then hitchhiked back to Sikeston where he learned that he was supposed to be dead and he notified his mother who called police.

Porter was reportedly trying to walk across the bridge railing when he fell into the water. He allegedly had been drinking at the

For Mississippi County

Airport contract signed

CHARLESTON— Progress on securing the $400,000- plus Mississippi County Airport reached the final stages Monday night with the signing of the formal contract between the Federal Aviation Administration and the Mississippi County Court.

The contract, presented by Herman M. Lindsey of the Kansas City regional office of FAA, was accepted and signed by Presiding Judge W.H. Winchester of East Prairie.

According to Lindsey, $339,866 in federal funds have been committed to the airport project and final engineering specifications are due by Aug. 1. Following approval of the specifications, the project can then be advertised for bids on construction.

James E. Moulder, executive vice president of R.W. Booker and Associates, Inc. of St. Louis, engineering firm for the project, reported the plans are on schedule and should be ready for approval by the Aug. 1 deadline.

Present to witness the signing of the contract were Dr. Lowell Nicholas of Charleston, chairman of the Mississippi County airport commission; Marion Waggener of Charleston, Hunt Wellborn of East Prairie and Kenneth Heath of Bertrand, members of the airport commission; and City Managers Richard Martin of Charleston and Gene Cullen of East Prairie, ex- officio members of the commission.

Former Gov. Warren E. Hearnes, who was instrumental in securing the airport facility, was also present, plus representatives of the Charleston and East Prairie City Councils; members of the County Court; and FAA and engineering officials.

The airport commission has taken an option on approximately 100 acres of land, located southwest of the intersection of Routes C and D and Highway 105 about five miles south of Charleston, from Norbert, John Francis and Mark Rolwing. The Rolwing brothers were also present Monday night.

Included in the airport development will be a 3,200 by 60- foot runway, apron and access road construction and installation of lighted wind cone, segmented circle and beacon, visual approach slope indicator, landscaping and a modest terminal building.

County voters in August of last year approved a $50,000 bond issue to pay the local cost of developing the air facility by a vote of 2,322 to 809. Major selling point for the bond issue was the fact that county taxes would not have to be raised due to a two cent per $100 valuation tax reduction by the County Health Department.

Federal funds of $339,866, state funds of $50,000 and the $50,000 local share make a total of $439,866 available for the facility.

If bids for construction can be let by Aug. 1, construction hopefully can be completed within six months.

Foster grandparent program funded

D.R. (Rod) Miller, president of Rural Missouri, Inc., announced today that a grant of $91,703 has been awarded to Rural Missouri, Inc. by ACTION to conduct the second year of a scheduled five- year Foster Grandparent Program.

The program, which began in August 1972 with an initial grant of $90,172, operates in a seven- county area in Southeast Missouri including the counties of Dunklin, Pemiscot, New Madrid, Stoddard, Scott, Mississippi and Butler, and has its project office in Sikeston. Mrs. Jolene Walker of Sikeston is the local project director.

At present the program operates in the regional diagnostic clinics at Sikeston and Poplar Bluff. Thirty- five foster grandparents have been recruited. Twenty are serving about 40 children in the Poplar Bluff clinic and 15 are serving around 30 children in the Sikeston clinic.

The goals of the RMI-FGP program are:

1. To reach out to the senior citizens in the project area and to draw them back into the mainstream of life;

2. To identify the children in need and to negotiate with the institutions and agencies to bring to each of these children the companionship and compassion of a foster grandparent;

3. To provide an earned income for the elderly poor which will not only ease their living conditions, but will also give pride in accomplishment, and a certain amount of independence;

4. To assist in solving some of the problems that exist in communities such as the so called generation gap; to change the status of elderly poor from 'unemployable financial burdens' to 'contributing community members'; and

5. To restore to the elderly poor and the socially disfunctional institutionalized young a sense of belonging; to help them know that they are a part of what's happening now, that they are not merely spectators watching from the sidelines as life passes them by.

Locally the program is overseen by an 18- member advisory council which continually evaluates and offers suggestions for improvement of the program. One third of this council are beneficiaries of the program.

"The Foster Grandparent Program represents social service programming at its best," Miller said in announcing the grant.

"This money is being spent to provide the means whereby human beings can do work for the general welfare which only human beings can do. We have always believed that this is the kind of work everyone wants and should have. No machine will ever be able to love a socially disturbed child; no computer could ever return the love of a foster grandparent in the way these children do.

"When many people talk of the government's being the employer of the last resort they envision only 'made- work' jobs; digging holes and filling them back up. What they fail to realize is that opportunities for vital creative, and urgently needed work abound in our society. It is to that work that our resources need to be committed," Miller explained.

"The plight of the mentally and emotionally ill, the plight of the aged is a national scandal. Mental patients are sentenced to mere custodial care when love and human compassion are essential to their cures. Elderly persons are similarly put on the shelf when all they need to become creative and productive human beings is the opportunity.

The Foster Grandparent Program is the beginning of a solution to that problem. We are delighted to be a part of it," Miller said.

Rural Missouri, Inc. has been operating various anti-poverty programs in the State of Missouri since 1967. In addition to the Foster Grandparent Program RMI operates six manpower training programs, an economic development program, a Volunteers in Service to America program, a small emergency health services program, and is affiliated with a housing rehabilitation program.

All programs are for the amelioration of poverty among Missouri's rural poor and the major portion of the funding for RMI programs is from the migrant and seasonal farmworker branch of the Office of Economic Opportunity, RMI being one of the direct grantees under Title III- B of the Economic Opportunity Act of 1954, as amended.

The office of the president and central administrative offices of Rural Missouri, Inc. are located in Jefferson City at 418 Madison St.

Sometime in the past the Standard has carried a news item that a bond issue is planned. On looking the thing over and seeing what they are going to build with the money, the Editor has come to the conclusion that he is not in favor of the bond issue. Now, of all the things being considered in there, the only thing that I think we need is probably a North side fire station, and it seems to me, that if the city can find money enough to put on other foolish things they could find $90,000 for the fire station and the pumper. It seems to me that the City Manager, I guess he is competent, but everything he brings up costs money, he never brings up anything that reduces it, of course the rate is being dropped 24 cents this year, from $1.74 per $100 assessed valuation to $1.50, of course then if they vote the bond issue the taxes will go back up. While I don't mind paying the taxes, I am not in favor of paying any increase for foolishness which the proposed bond issue seems to me to be.

HOW SHALL WE
COPE WITH INFLATION?

For the person with money to invest, the problem arises: Where to put it at relatively low risk and reasonable prospects of appreciation? While the national average rate of inflation may be 6 to 7 per cent at a given time, many persons incur a higher rate because of their life style.

For those who live near or above the median on the economic scale, and whose living costs are being pushed up 9 to 10 per cent or more a year by inflation, the 5 to 6-1/2 per cent interest on savings accounts makes little sense as an investment program. Only high quality bond interest ordinarily matches the rate of inflation. Life insurance is necessary for protection, but the premium put into cash value generally appreciates at a lower rate than the average inflationary rate.

Investing in real estate, except for one's own home, can be tricky. The same may be said for trading in stocks of individual companies.

A mystery is the fact that investors have been turning away from one of the soundest methods of investment -- mutual funds -- at a rate faster than new investors have been buying them. Mutual funds have been experiencing net redemptions over the past 14 months, despite their advantages of diversification of holdings, benefits of intensive investment research and professional money management, and an average yearly growth rate near 9 per cent over the past 10 years. Over the last 23 years, 1950 through 1972, the annual growth rate of the average mutual fund has actually been 10.7 per cent, well ahead of the average rate of inflation.

Each person has to figure it out for himself, because the problem won't go away. But nesting a hard- earned egg in a tree stump has been proved improvident.

NEW TOWNS CONCEPT
URGED IN NEW
ENVIRONMENT STUDY

A national policy calling for the creation of New Towns as laboratories for innovative methods to make America's cities more livable was proposed in a new private study sponsored by Laurance S. Rockefeller.

The study, "Man and His Urban Environment," proposes that the New Towns be funded by public corporations, constructed according to a master plan and have a controlled growth pattern.

"This is a continuing inquiry," said Mr. Rockefeller, "designed to ask some new questions, to consider some different aspects of the total urban problem, in the hope of leading toward some new answers." It starts with only one conviction, he said: cities must do more toward adapting to man than, as in the past, requiring man to adapt to the cities.

The report is the result of a three- year investigation, involving a number of authorities, scholars and scientsits in several countries, into the effectiveness of efforts to resolve pressing urban problems.

"The city today is a mechanism full of bugs," the report says, "but a properly designed New Town could privde a clean slate."

Because land use in the new city would be under strict controls, the key problem initially would be finding a working formula under which private enterprise and public requirements could operate compatibly. Hence, said the study, establishment of a public corporation offers great promise. Such a corporation would provide necessary condemnation powers to acquire land, would assist in securing the vast funds needed, and would permit free enterprise to function effectively.

Experiments in such towns, said the report, could lead to new methods and procedures which might be adapted for use in deteriorating cities, just as experiments in Britain's New Towns surrounding London proved helpful in making that major center one of the world's best governed cities.

But despite their success in Britain, the study cautioned against assuming that New Towns "are the best of all possible answers to our mounting population crowding problems," because they will never be able to absorb more than a small percentage of our expected population growth. They are mainly important for developing new management methods and experimenting with new institutions.

A prototype of an experimental New Town project, included in the study, envisions an urban area with a maximum population of 150,000 — about the population of Lincoln, Nebraska, or Jackson, Mississippi. This would be broken down into a series of villages, each with a population of about 11,500. Streets would be eliminated and only one general access route for automobiles and trucks would be provided to the center of town. Housing for different economic levels would be provided. Industry and recreation areas would be located within fixed boundaries. Services such as power, water, sewage and waste disposal would be centralized and would utilize important new technologies.

New Towns, said the study, could be built on four sites: free- standing towns well beyond existing urban areas; in-town towns, an expansion of present urban- renewal model towns; existing smaller towns might be expanded or townc could be created as separate entities; or satellites, on the edge of existing urban concentrations — a course which the report indicates might be the most practical.

NOTORIOUS
LOOPHOLE

Education is a heavy burden on local governments, and taxpayers have shown their resentment. Bond issues and school budgets have been ruthlessly voted down. The head of a major electric company in California now has drawn attention to one way of easing the tax burden on local taxpayers. He appeared before a state legislative committee to urge adoption of a proposed law that would levy an excise tax of 14 per cent upon government - operated electric utilities -- an amount equal to that presently paid by investor - owned electric utilities in the State of California. He emphasized that 78 per cent of Californians pay state and local taxes as customers of investor - owned electric utilities, while 22 per cent of the state's citizens served by nontaxpaying, government - operated electric utilities do not.

The utility executive declared, "In practical terms, this means that some 15 million Californians are being discriminated against, as customers of investor- owned electric utilities because they pay more than their fair share of the costs of schools, local and state government, while the customers off government - owned electric utilities are not similarly taxed." He also stressed the point that while some government - owned electric utilities make payments in lieu of taxes, "... the entire in-lieu payment goes to the city and no payment is made by such utility to support schools, county government or state government."

Tax favoritism of public power projects constitutes a notorious loophole -- a loophole that advocates of government in business and many legislators in other states and the national capital would rather not discuss.

KEEP GOVERNMENT
NEUTRAL

Public assistance to strikers, such as food stamps, welfare benefits, and other payments, is mounting so rapidly that it is expected to cost the taxpayers more than $300 million annually this fiscal year and in the future. What's more, this use of tax funds is a threat to the survival of true collective bargaining.

When management and union representatives sit down at the bargaining table during a strike, economic pressures are always present on both sides: loss of wages by employees and loss of income by the employer as production and sales decline or are cut off completely. Eventually these pressures induce a meeting o the minds.

But the striker is less inclined to go back to work when working taxpayers are providing food for his table and money for the other necessities of life. And strikers put less pressure on unionofficials to settle the strike because the availability of tax funds lessens the strain on the strikers' pocketbooks.

Where tax dollars are used, or merely are available to support strikers, the obvious result will be higher wage settlements than otherwise might be expected.

Taxpayers and the public, in turn, are forced to pay higher prices, withstand diminished production, and might even be faced with a loss of their own jobs, if their employers curtail operations because of a strike.

The use of public aid to enlarge union power is morally unjustified, detrimental to the viability of free collective bargaining, and makes suspect the national policy that the government should remain neutral in labor disputes.

It All Depends on How You Look at It

Despite their use in spreading terror in horror films, the tarantula is not a particularly dangerous insect. Its bite is not as fearsome as its visage. Unless you have a particular allergy, the bites of some ants, bees and wasps can be more harmful.

The common cold is still the chief enemy of the factory foreman and the office straw boss. From 40 to 50 per cent of all absenteeism is blamed on colds, and the average worker loses four or five days a week because of them. Sixty per cent of the people have from two to three colds a year, and only six per cent go through a year without one.

Here is a fact that doesn't add to our national pride: The United States has one of the highest rates of alcoholism in the world, and alcohol is recognized as the No. 1 drug of abuse in this country.

Quotable notables: "We live but once; we owe nothing to posterity; and a man's own happiness counts before that of anything else." — Norman Douglas.

Dutch problem: One of the woes of traffic cops in Amsterdam is that about 50 drivers a year manage to drive their vehicles into canals. The special police who have the task of fishing the cars out are called grachtenvissers, or canal fishermen.

Puff Puff: Man probably smoked before he learned to read or write. Indians were smoking in South America 5,000 or more years ago, and in Wyoming pipes were used 4,000 years ago. But since tobacco is a New World plant, smoking was probably unknown in the ancient civilizations of Egypt, Greece and Rome.

Worth remembering: "A man can go through married life without an angry word or fight, "If he'll just shut up when he's wrong and keep still when he's right."

JACK ANDERSON SAYS: CRP's Diverted Funds Subject To Taxation

WASHINGTON — Those responsible for the Watergate crime may have to pay taxes on the $1 million in campaign funds that were laid out for break-ins, hush money, legal fees and political sabotage.

Tax experts tell us President Nixon himself is liable if he had knowledge of the disbursements. Even if his aides kept him in the dark, he may still be held legally responsible for the tax obligation.

This is the import of a still-secret General Accounting Office study on the Nixon campaign committees. Quoting tax rules, the study declares that "the expenditure of political funds for other than campaign or similar purposes will be considered a diversion of such funds requiring inclusion in income."

This dry language explains how the Internal Revenue Service is supposed to treat campaign funds that aren't spent for campaign purposes. The new requirement was adopted in 1968 after we revealed that the late Sen. Tom Dodd, D-Conn., had diverted tens of thousands of dollars from his campaign coffers into his own pockets. Dodd was censured, and misdirected campaign funds were made taxable.

Someone Must Pay

Now Nixon's campaign collections have been diverted into improper pockets and spent for illegal purposes. Our tax advisers say someone must pay taxes on the $460,000 at least that was paid to the Waterbuggers to buy their silence and to compensate their lawyers. In all likelihood, the hundreds of thousands spent on illegal compaign activities are also taxable.

If the President can't be stuck with the tax obligation, then the campaign aides who made the pay-outs are clearly liable. They would include Finance Chairman Maurice Stans, the President's personal lawyer Herbert Kalmbach, former Attorney General John Mitchell, White House staff chief, H. R. Haldeman, presidental adviser John Ehrlichman and campaign aide Jeb Magruder.

Our tax advisers say the President may also be in tax trouble over the financial help he accepted from aerosol king Robert Abplanalp to buy the San Clemente retreat.

The Nixons signed personal notes, which Abplanalp later tore up, for $625,000. In return, Abplanalp is supposed to own most of the 26-acre tract around the presidential compound.

Taxable Income

The First Family got the deal approved by the local Internal Revenue office, but our tax experts insist the Nixons should pay taxes on the $625,000. As they interpret the law, the tearing up of the personal notes -- in other words, the cancellation of the debt -- makes the $625,000 taxable income.

They point out that the Nixons are using the entire 26-acres, that property records show no evidence the acreage has been legally divided and that the whole deal appears to be a gimmick to benefit the Nixons.

A spokesman for the President assured us, on the other hand, that Abplanalp is the legal owner of the land around the Nixon compound, that the land is going up in value and that it is a profitable investment for Abplanalp.

If anyone but the President were involved, Internal Revenue surely would be investigating. A spokesman refused to tell us, however, whether IRS is investigating the President or any of his aides on tax matters.

Footnote: The secret GAO report also reveals that the financial arm of the Committee for the Re-election of the President is operating in technical violation of the law. Its charter says it would fold up on May 7, six months after the election. Yet it is still in operation. A party spokesman said the finance committee has had to continue in business in order to deal with cases pending in the courts.

Lavender Hill Mob: Under the innocuous title "Administrative Survey Detachment," retired military spies are continuing to snoop for the Army as civilians. More than 250 former intelligence officers, inconspicuous in mufti, are stationed around the world. They operate out of the Army's main intelligence center, Ft. Holabird, Md., under the direction of Col. Walter Cronin. At least 20 have been sent to Vietnam to run double agents against the north.

Giant Shredder: The Internal Revenue Service, in an apparent economy move, has centralized its massive shredding operation at headquarters. This has ruffled the feathers of some IRS bigwigs who prefer the prestige of having their own office shredder. IRS Programs Chief Richard Wintrode, for example, recently requested a paper shredder for the audit division. Wintrode was told to use "the large shredder located in the basement." The huge Model 22 shredder, which stands nearly six feet high, can grind 600 pounds of confidential memos per hour.

Perot's Wall Street: In March, we told how Texas financier Ross Perot was planning to "take Wall Street to Main Street" by giving a break to small investors at his brokerage house of duPont Glore Forgan. Unfortunately, the last few months have shown that Perot seems more interested in taking the small investor to the cleaners. Documents from inside duPont Glore disclose that brokers there get 40 per cent commissions on big sales, but only 10 per cent of gross commissions on small sales. This encourages them to ignore small customers. Furthermore, we have discovered that duPont Glore has set up a subtle "goal" quota system for their low producing brokers which encourages them to "churn" stocks --buying and selling rapidly to bring in higher commissions. In New York, a duPont Glore spokesmore defended their practices as no worse than those of other houses.

Prices are shooting up astronomically and, according to left- slanted politician and opinion- molders, restrictions on producers are needed yesterday to solve the problem. Farmers and ranchers have lost their clout at the ballot box. Being the most efficient food producers in the world, they have grown so much with so little manpower that they no longer have the numbers to swing very many election precincts in this nation.

Because meat producers refused tax- payer subsidies during lean times, prices were kept low and efficiency grew higher. When skyrocketing wages and demand for meat began to bring a little equity to the farmers and ranchers, the cry went up to punish the producers. Publicity- grabbing people now call for price controls on farmers and ranchers, which is a sure- fire way to bring about real meat shortages. Farmers cannot stay in business if their prices are controlled while their costs continue to shoot up.

Almost 20 years ago the "do gooders" set out to punish producers of oil and gas in the same way they are now attempting to punish our farmers and ranchers. The predictable results will also be the same. That is, if the leftists succeed, you can be sure of ever- tightening shortages of food. The way to stop it is for the citizens to unite, organize and say to the meddlers: Enough; the people will allow no more punishment of producers. If we are to eat, heat our homes, power our factories and move our people and our goods, we must allow the producers to produce the good things of life. Only free people can produce and prosper. HLH

The Welfare Heisters:
Newest State Probes Reveal a 'Shocking' 40% Relief Ripoff by Ineligibles

WASHINGTON— Always there are many loud ones who protect the heisters, and therefore do grievous injustice to the helpless, by crying out against virtually all efforts to drive the thieves out of the welfare system. Sometimes this championing of hundreds of thousands of ineligible charlatans is unwitting and emotional.

Sometimes the good in heart misinterpret the authorities' efforts to save hundreds of millions of needed dollars as a plot to persecute black and other minorities. Let it be known this isn't a black problem. This isn't a Puerto Rican or Chicano problem. Fact is that the minorities are a minority of those receiving any kind of relief including aid to families with dependent children.

But the truth is that at least $800 million is paid annually to ineligible welfare clients. And this is just the tip of the iceberg. That's the figure which can be and has been documented.

July 1 is the deadline for cleaning up this thieves' paradise. There will be loud shouts and booing of those who attempt to explain the need for getting the money out of the pockets of the looters and into the pocketbooks of the needy--- including, of course, the U.S. Treasury.

Fact is that many federal experts have discovered that in some states the rate of such looting, such ineligibility, runs to an average of at least 40 per cent of those on the relief rolls. Some years ago this was discovered in some California districts by the then state welfare director Robert Carleson--- now special assistant to HEW Secretary Caspar Weinberger for Welfare Matters.

Some 10 per cent of America's welfare clients are in California. More than 11 per cent are in New York state. The latter state's Social Services Commissioner Abe Lavine, has been spot- checking some counties in search of fraud and ineligibility. His test experiments pivot on face- to- face verification of welfare clients. Meaning, he has had his probers summon welfare recipients in for interviews on their actual need for public assistance.

Working with random selections, he has found preliminary evidence of a probable 40 per cent ineligibility. At least 40 per cent of those invited in were not showing up, or were calling in asking to be terminated or were patently ineligible. Those who have worked with him report he was "shocked" by what he is finding.

Further, in one New England state the federal people have been working with the governor. He was startled to find that some 47 per cent of the clients have been overpaid an average of $51 monthly.

And in one heavily industrialized Midwestern state, the investigators discovered discrepancies of several hundred dollars in monthly income between what the welfare recipients have reported to the welfare department and what was being reported by their employers to the jobless insurance division.

But the evidence of fraud, or at least ineligibility, is heaviest in New York City--- which has some 9 per cent of the nation's welfare clients. There's a decrease in welfare clients which has been reported for the seventh consecutive month. It took some struggling but the case workers' cadre finally stopped fighting the new computerization and face- to- face verification and recertification checks.

Thus 68,256 persons have been taken from the rolls, mostly for lack of need and eligibility or because "quality control systems" have finally gotten to the crooks. And getting to them is a boon to the helpless, the aged, the families with dependent children. Especially the children. It has been discovered that welfare corruption rots the system, terrorizes welfare case workers, and has caused tragic child abuse, because of the fear among case workers who find it impossible to do their work and fight the looters.

Commissioner Lavine now has warned local welfare agencies that they must recertify in face- to- face interviews all clients within 90 days after they get on the rolls and thereafter in intervals of six months to a year.

Punishment for failure to verify client needs will be refusal of federal and state authorities to reimburse the local communities for money paid to ineligibles. This could cost the local relief offices millions of dollars.

There is no shame in submitting to recertification or original inspection. There is no invasion of privacy, as some labor leaders say. After all, those who apply for Social Security are checked out. So are those who seek veterans benefits. These are truly earned rights. Why should those who seek unearned--- albeit much needed--- relief money not be subjected to the same checkup as those who have paid a Social Security tax most of their lives?

The $800 million lost annually could be ploughed back into the homes of the needy. Some of the money could go into other public services. The trimming of relief rolls would cut administrative costs.

The vast 38- year- old welfare system isn't pennyante stuff. There are, for example, some $5 billion paid out in food stamps, free commodities and meals. And most of this--- which comes to some 3 per cent of the nation's food bill--- should be distributed to the hungry. But what of the food stamps and commodities which are resold? Or, as the "now" generation says, "ripped off"--- stolen by ineligibles.

In New Madrid County

Valuation tops $66 million

NEW MADRID— The valuation for New Madrid County Proper used for tax purposes, according to County Clerk Jesse H. Wilkins, reflected only a three per cent increase over 1972 values. However, despite the small percentage, the increase represents a sum of $1,849,587 which boosts the total valuation to $66,516,587.

The assessor's books filed with the county clerk indicates that farm lands were increased $197,200, while town lots were increased $81,900. The real estate values including farm lands and town lots, now stand at $2,638,135 or $1,135,675 more than for 1972.

The average value per acre of farm land was $78.07 on the 410,693 acres of taxable land, which does not include the 4,017 acres in St. Jude Industrial Park owned by the City of New Madrid. The 10,174 town lots averages $1,006.44 per lot for taxable purposes. There appears to be 9,957 property owners in the county.

Although the county may be minus a few families, according to the census report, it failed to lower the valuation of personal property, which now is assessed at $7,639,656, a gain over 1972 values of $675,900.

Items included are cattle, $36,855, averaging $48.81 each; hogs $5,950, averaging $19.44 each; poultry, $750; farm machinery, $941, 825; household property, $1,465,400; motor vehicles, 10,923, averaging $370.02 for a total of $4,041,750; and all other personal property, $1,147,026. The personal assessment book lists 8,935 different tax payers.

The merchants and manufacturers book carries 447 establishments, seven less than for 1972, with values for tax purposes fixed at $2,158,090, a $38,012 increase over 1972 values.

Railroad and utilities are assessed by the State Tax Commission and current values will not be available until July. However, the 1972 values were $14,080,706. This could be increased due to expansion of Southwestern Bell Telephone Co. facilities. The company now makes up approximately 10 per cent of the total county valuation.

The City of Sikeston is a major contributor to the increases in values. That portion of Sikeston within New Madrid County carries an increase of approximately 42.5 per cent, or $740,232.

Real estate increased by $684,800 to $1,778,950 which includes Kingsway Plaza Mall with real estate and buildings alone valued at $1 million. Personal property increased by $43,410 to the present $302,500; while merchant and manufacturer values stand at $400,991 or $12,022 over 1972 values.

That portion of Sikeston within New Madrid County is expected to carry a total valuation of $2,482,441.

Superstructure span begins

BOOTHSPOINT, Tenn.— The giant steel superstructure of the Interstate 155 bridge that will span the Mississippi River between Tennessee and Missouri has started skyward.

"The first steel in the superstructure of the bridge is going up on top of Pier 23, a land pier on the Tennessee side of the river," said Bill Gigl, project engineer for the John F. Beasley Construction Co. of Dallas.

"We should complete the steel work on the Tennessee side in about three weeks. Then we will move to the land piers on the Missouri side.

"The five spans over the river will be done last and probably will take us from seven to eight months to complete."

Work on the first phase of the $26 million bridge, located about 15 miles west of Dyersburg, was begun in 1969. The bridge will break a 219- mile bridgeless stretch between Memphis and Cairo, Ill., and will connect northwest Tennessee with Interstate 55 in Southeast Missouri.

Travelers who wish to cross the river in the area now must pay $3 to ride across the river on a privately owned ferry or drive to a bridge in Memphis or Cairo.

Cement piers for the bridge were completed last fall by Massman and Johnson Construction Co. of Kansas City, Mo., but high water then brought the bridge construction to a halt.

Steel for the bridge has been docked in the Caruthersville marina during the recent flood.

"We have a crew of 30 ironworkers and equipment operators on the job," said Gigl. "Barges containing steel for the bridge are in the process of unloading now."

Ann Landers

New groom seems to be surrounded by men

Dear Ann Landers: My husband and I have been married four months. We grew up in the same town but never got to know each other until he finished college and came back here to live. We dated a year and then married.

For a while everything was wonderful. I really love the guy and I believe he loves me. But about two months ago his friends began to turn up--- people I'd never met before, and it's apparent to me that they are all gay.

For the past three weeks we have not had one evening alone. His friends are here every night. When we go out to eat he invites two or three to come along. Two of his closest pals have rented an apartment next to ours and if they don't drop in for dinner he goes and gets them. They adore him and have a million laughs. I seem to be out of it. In fact, I sense some silent hostility toward me.

Our sex life is fine but how normal can a guy be when he is surrounded by homosexuals all the time? I am only 23 and must be a lot more unsophisticated than I thought. I keep telling myself I'm imagining things but deep down inside I'm terribly worried. In the meantime I'm becoming increasingly doubtful and resentful.--- Hope I'm Wrong

Dear Hope: Sorry, but I'm afraid your fears are well founded. It's very odd for a new groom to want to be surrounded by friends every night.

As times goes on you will probably discover more evidence that your suspicions are correct and they you must decide what you want to do about it. For now, some counseling might help to relieve your anxiety.

Dear Ann Landers: My sister and her husband are planning a two- week vacation soon. Since they will be going quite a distance by jet it would be difficult to take their two children. (They are under five years of age.)

Mom is going to use up her two- week vacation to stay at home and care for the youngsters. I feel that since Mom has worked hard all her life she is entitled to her vacation and should not be using her time off work running after my sister's kids. They are a handful.

The problem is that Mom will not allow a stranger to care for the children in their parents' absence and feels obligated to take them. Is there some way of solving the problem without starting a family war?--- Innocent Bystander

Dear I.B.: You don't sound like an "Innocent Bystander" to me. You sound like a warmonger.

If your mother would not allow a stranger to watch after her grandchildren and feels obligated to take care of them, what business is it of yours? I don't see YOU offering to take them. And while I am not suggesting that you should, I am suggesting that since your mother wants to, butt out, Sis.

Dear Ann Landers: Why don't some men realize that affection during sex isn't enough? My husband never touches me outside the bedroom. I'd give anything if he'd give me a squeeze, pat my rump, or put his arms around me once in a while.

We've been married 15 years and he's a great guy, but he's a Touch- Me- Not. Please don't say "Tell him." I have told him, several times, and it hasn't helped. Am I expecting too much? Maybe I should count my blessings.--- Tactile Tillie

Dear Tac: Accept the fact that he's not a toucher and don't make a pest of yourself. Yeah--- count your blessings.

There is a big difference between cold and cool. Ann Landers shows you how to play it cool without freezing people out in her booklet, "Teen- Age Sex--- Ten Ways To Cool It." Send 50c in coin and a long, self- addressed, stamped envelope to this newspaper.

St. Mary's Hospital to close

Phasing out of services at the institution which has served this area for about 100 years will begin Friday, according to the announcement.

Reaction from public officials has been one of deep regret and sorrow, coupled with expressed hope that some measures may be taken in the near future to assure the residents of the tri- state area which the hospital serves of the operation of the hospital as a medical facility.

The announcement which the hospital released said:

"Following a meeting on June 7 with representatives of the State of Illinois, the board of directors of Saint Mary's Hospital announced plans to close the hospital by Aug. 31, 1973.

"The phasing out of the hospital service will begin on June 15.

"The Sisters are working closely with the state in the phasing out process.

"During the past two years the increased number of welfare patients and the reimbursement formulae under Medicaid and Medicare regulations have increasingly affected the financial situation of the hospital.

"In the last fiscal year the loss on Medicaid and Medicare patients exceeded a quarter million dollars.

"This, together with a lack of personnel resources within the area, have made necessary the announcement to close.

"During the interim period Saint Mary's will assist the state and other concerned persons in the development of alternate methods to meet the health care needs of the citizens of Cairo and the surrounding area.

"The Sisters of the Holy Cross have provided health care to the area for over a century and deeply regret the necessity of closing the hospital at this time."

The announcement came a little less than four months after hospital officials announced in a public meeting that the facility was experiencing losses and might be forced to close.

Since that time, officials have met with members of Gov. Dan Walker's staff and with local residents.

The announcement came as no surprise to local officials but each one contacted expressed deep regret at the announcement.

"We are continuing to search for any and every means possible to keep the hospital open as a viable medical facility," Joe Bennett, president of the Cairo Chamber of Commerce, said.

"We are aware of the critical situation but we haven't given up hope yet."

Mayor James Walder, when contacted about the announcement said, "We hope that something can be worked out.

"This community needs a hospital. We realize that there are little private funds and apparently little public funds available. But we hope that the hospital can remain in operation."

Dr. Lewis Ent, who has practiced medicine in Cairo for 38 years, said, "It is with deep sorrow that I learn of the plans for the hospital to close.

"We need this hospital."

The Sisters of the Holy Cross, who have managed the hospital, trace the beginning of medical service to the area to the Civil War when nuns staffed the hospital at Mound City.

Their participation and those of others in the area in the hospital's work has been referred to as the beginning of the Navy Nurse Corps in the United States.

Funds approved to finance workshops

KENNETT— State and federal funds totaling $33,600 have been approved for initial financing of the Cotton Boll Sheltered Workshop Corporation, it was announced Monday by Charles Royal of Malden, president of the organization.

The funds were approved by the Governor's Advisory Council on Mental Retardation, headed by Dr. Joe Zimmerman, Kennett. They will be added to some $11,000 in public contributions in Dunklin County to begin the operation of sheltered workshops at Malden and Kennett and later in Pemiscot County.

Royal said he has received written confirmation of the $33,600 grant.

With the receipt of the funds, Royal noted, work will begin immediately to place the two proposed workshops in operation. Because of the immediate availability of a building at the Malden Industrial Park, the first workshop will begin there, hopefully by July 1, the sheltered workshop president said. The Kennett workshop will probably be opened in September when a building at Friendship has been remodeled.

The appointment of an executive committee to assist and guide the workshop manager was also announced by Royal. Members of the committee include Bill Johnson, Mrs. Jane Michel, Mrs. Bob Stark, Lloyd Spalter, Bob Shirley and Royal.

The non- profit workshop corporation is now in the process of securing vans and a two- ton truck for operation of the Kennett and Malden units. Vans will be used to transport employes to and from work, and will be utilized this summer to transport some employes to Malden until the Kennett workshop is opened.

Bloomfield girl wins optometric art contest

JEFFERSON CITY— Robin Patrick of Bloomfield has submitted the winning entry in the Missouri Optometric Association Joy of Seeing Elementary School Art Contest.

Miss Patrick's creation, a drawing summing up the true Joy of Seeing, was selected by the panel of judges over the nearly 3,000 other entries from young aspiring artists from every part of the state.

The second place art work was submitted by Jordan Perry of Moberly, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ray Perry. The third place award went to Sherrie Bray of Joplin Route Two, daughter of Mrs. Nancy Bray.

Fifteen runners- up in the state Joy of Seeing Elementary School Art Contest were also honored for their art work.

A special Missouri Optometric Association Presidential Award was made to James Van Deman of 200 St. Benedict, Florissant, for his entry.

In early March, contest information was distributed to every elementary school in Missouri, and the result was the 2,808 entries received by the contest deadline April 30. In all, 129 towns and communities were represented by entries. The largest single entry came from St. Clair Elementary School at St. Clair, which had 163 art entries. Meta Elementary school submitted 122, and Osage Hills Schools of Kirkwood sent in 121.

J.D. Parks, professor of art at Lincoln University in Jefferson City, headed the state contest selection committee composed of Mary Jo Williams, Lincoln University Art Department, and Mrs. Ruth Hogan, supervisor of elementary art for the Jefferson City School Board, and noted that the judging was particularly difficult because of the abstract theme.

"When you ask an elementary- aged artist to describe his own views of the Joy of Seeing," Parks explained, "you get anyone of a thousand different concepts."

"We tried to judge the entries on not just the artist's ability," he continued, "but on their ability to portray the theme. With so many good entries submitted, it was paramount to keep the contest theme in mind when making the selection."

Forty top players named to All-State

Grant Dambach

The Missouri Sportswriters and Sportscasters Association has selected 40 top players from across the state to the Class A and Class AA baseball teams for 1973.

Outfielder Steve Volkerding of the Cape Central Tigers was a unanimous choice for first team honors in 2A. The flashy, hard hitting Tiger is the only repeater from last year's all- state team as he was the only underclassman chosen on the 1972 squad.

Second baseman David Wilfong of Flat River Central was the only other area 2A player to make either the first or second team. Wilfong was picked for the second team.

Southeast Missouri was well represented in this year's voting as eleven players were named to either Class AA or Class A. Eight players received honorable mention on the squad.

This district was well represented on the Class A all- state team as six of the 10 selected to the first team were from Southeast Missouri. Three were named to the second team and one received honorable mention.

Mitchell Walker, Greg Colwick, and John Leible were the Sikeston Bulldogs to receive honorable mention. All three boys are juniors and have another big year in front of them. Leible received honorable mention on last year's squad as a sophomore.

Kelly and Lilbourn were the only two teams to place more than one player on the first team all- state in Class A. State runnerup, Illmo-Scott City, placed three players on the second team along with KC Pem- Day, who took first place in the state.

Grant Dambach of Lilbourn and Dell Walker of Bernie were moved up to the first team after placing on the second team last year. Jeff Jackson, of Kelly, was voted to the first team after receiving honorable mention last year. Ken Urhahn of Kelly and Greg Weeks of Lilbourn were also voted to the first team.

Descriptions of each player's accomplishments:

Roberta Flack to star in TV special this month

NEW YORK (AP) — The first time ever I saw Roberta Flack's face she was singing before a packed house at Mr. Henry's, a small night club a few blocks from Capitol Hill in Washington, D.C.

That was in 1968. Come June 19, she'll be singing to a national audience as the star of her own first TV special, a halfhour ABC show called "Roberta Flack...the First Time Ever."

It should be excellent, if her past performances are any guide.

I have to confess I've been a Roberta Flack cheerleader since her Mr. Henry's days. At that time, she had a small, enthusiastic army of fans that included both politicians and established performers.

She sang beautifully, played fine jazz piano and occasionally conducted the best sing-along any saloon probably will ever hear. It wasn't simple barbershop quartet stuff, either.

She'd announce a song, then assign sections of the audience fairly hard contrapuntal harmony parts, the kind that weave around the main tune. It usually sounded great.

Since leaving Mr. Henry's, Miss Flack has racked up one best-selling album and three hit records.

An Asheville, N.C., native whose family moved to Virginia when she still was young, she's a classically trained pianist, a graduate of Howard University's music school and a former schoolteacher.

In addition to her performing and composing, she owns two music publishing firms and is a partner in a production company with singer Donny Hathaway, with whom she recorded her "Where is Love" hit of last year.

The Prayer from the upper room

So teach us to number our days that we may get a heart of wisdom. [Psalm 90:21]

PRAYER: God of our fathers, give us the wisdom to appreciate the past, but not to be limited by its accomplishments. Set our faces toward the future and incline our minds to seek Thy perfect will. In Christ's name. Amen.

What's the law?

The case of the enthusiastic sheriff

By Jack Strauss, LL.B.

Hopalong Schwartz was sheriff of Poker Flats. And while he was an enthusiastic sheriff, his horse wasn't quite as public spirited as he was. While galloping after a pair of desperadoes, his horse suddenly decided that it was too hot to go chasing after bad men.

Pulling up under a spreading chestnut tree, his horse laid down on the cool grass and, placing one of its front hoofs over his eyes to shade out the light, proceeded to go to sleep.

Undismayed, Hopalong rolled out of his saddle and scrambled over to Chester's nearby corral. There he roped one of Chester's more public- spirited horses and continued the pursuit. And while Hopalong never did catch up with the desperadoes, Chester caught up with Hopalong and sued him for horse stealing.

"I don't care if he was chasing Jessie James," he told the judge. "He had no right to take my horse without my permission."

"I sure did," was Hopalong's answer. "As sheriff, I had the right to call up a posse. And, obviously, if I had the right to call up a horse and rider, I had the right to call up a horse without a rider. Any dang fool can figure that one out. Consequently, there's nothing I did for which Chester can sue me."

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you make Hopalong pay for riding off on Chester's horse?

This is how the judge ruled: YES! The judge held that a sheriff is required to furnish his own horse. And while he may have the authority to call out men for a posse, concluded the judge, he has no right to call out just their horses.

NASTURTIUMS – GOOD ENOUGH TO EAT

Every portion of a Nasturtium is good to eat — the flowers, the stems and the leaves are great in salads, while the seeds are delicious pickled.

For a really delicious taste-thrill, snap off the spur of a nasturtium flower and eat it. The combination of sweet nectar and mildly pungent flavor of the plant mingle to produce a delicious taste.

Actually, the entire nasturtium plant, including stems, leaves, flowers and seeds are great to eat. The spicy leaves are good in sandwiches and salads, imparting a flavor similar to garden cress. The seeds make a good winter snack. They grow large as peas and are easy to handle. Just clean and bottle them with freshly boiled vinegar. Then seal and store for winter.

Of course, nasturtiums are beautiful in the flower garden. Choose dwarf varieties for low beds and borders, and tall types to climb up trellis and netting. Flowers are mostly yellow, orange and red on long stems excellent for dainty flower arrangements.

Cultivate soil well before planting seed in spring after danger of frost. When planted in shade or a soil that's too rich and moist, they have a tendency to produce more leaves than flowers.

Children love to plant nasturtium seeds because the seeds are very easy to handle, and the resulting plants have other attractions. For instance, hummingbirds love nasturtium nectar, and if you have never seen a hummingbird in your garden a bed of nasturtiums might well attract them. Two popular varieties of nasturtums are the Gleam and Jewel series. Flowers of Gleam are extra-large and sweet-scented, growing 3 ft. tall with stems long enough to make beautiful flower arrangements. The Jewel series are low-growing — just 1 ft. high, each plant creating a neat dome of flowers and foliage.

Committee deadlocked on elderly tax relief bill

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — A joint House-Senate conference committee trying to work out a "circuit breaker" bill to give tax relief to the elderly, remained deadlocked after its meeting Monday night.

Both sides appear to have tentatively agreed on an income limit of $7,500 for those who would be eligible to receive tax relief. A bill passed earlier by the House let persons with incomes up to $10,000 get relief. The Senate's original bill put the income ceiling at $6,500.

The Senate members prefer a formula whereby the tax credit would be the difference between the property tax bill and 4 per cent of the house-hold income. For renters 15 per cent of the year's total rent would be used as the property tax base.

The House prefers a graduated scale based on tax relief for a percentage figured on total income, allowing renters to get 18 per cent of the year's rent for credit.

The two sides also disagree over the effective date for the bill. House members want the bill to go into effect on Oct. 1, 1973.

The senators say the House date would make it difficult to calculate a person's tax on a basis for the entire year, because it would be retroactive.

The Senate members also say the House's 18 per cent for renters might cost the state too much in lost revenues, if there is 100 per cent participation in the program.

Nearly 300,000 persons over 65 are expected to be eligible for tax relief.

House conferees say in other states where such a formula has been tried there has not been over 50 per cent participiation.

Among key legislation yet to be resolved this session is a bill attempting to raise legislators' pay and remove the limits on the number of staff members the legislature may hire.

A bill which would raise the salary from $8,400 to $12,000 and allow the legislature to increase its staff appears headed for a conference committee after the Senate Monday defeated a House porposal to set up a legislative pay commission with voter approval.

The legislature has sent a bill to the governor which would increase the per diem pay from $10 to $25 a day while in session.

The Senate passed and returned to the House an amended bill which would allow thes Public Service Commission to license an estimated 10,000 mobile homes and about 5,000 recreational vehicles.

The Senate passed and returned to the House another bill which would allow foster parents to receive subsidies for adopting hard-to place children. The Senate amended the bill to prohibit the subsidy if the parents moved out of the state.

The House passed and sent to the governor bills that would:

—Prevent insurance companies from canceling auto insurance for any reason other than failure to pay premiums.

—Give state aid to public hospitals to pay off 10 per cent of the hospital's debt.

—Allow the state to issue grants to aid in the formation of sewer and water districts.

The Senate approved and sent to the governor bills to:;

—Make an easement change to straighten a road to a hospital and give the National Guard armory more parking space for the two Cape Girardeau facilities.

—Set the maximum nonteacher retirement compensation for school employes at $10,000 a year and the minimum at $1,200.

Spitler to succeed Young as P'ville city attorney

PORTAGEVILLE — Charles L. Spitler of New Madrid has been appointed city attorney by the City Council to succeed Linus E. Young, who resigned, according to City Clerk Raymond Secoy.

Mayor Barry Richardson, who assumed office May 7, did not ask the council to reappoint Young to the office.

An estimated plan for use of $31,104 in federal revenue-sharing funds has been filed with the federal government.

Secoy said the plan lists 47 per cent for streets; 25 per cent for sanitation, 15 per cent for the water department, 5 per cent for the park, 5 per cent for the police department and 3 per cent for city jail improvements.

Secoy reported repairs amounting to approximately $2,000, including plumbing repairs, are being made to bring the jail in line with sanitary standards.

The city is operating a mosquito fogging machine four times weekly on Monday, Tuesday, Thursday and Friday. Parents of youngsters are warned not to allow children to follow the machine because of the dense spray and concentrated chemicals. Also, motorists are urged to use caution when approaching or following the unit.

The council and chamber of Commerce are co-operating to find space for off-street parking for Main Street employes, so additional parking space will be available for shoppers and others attending to business on Main Street.

Wasteland

In the mid-19th century, California's Imperial Valley was a waterless wasteland "not worth a dollar," according to Daniel Webster.

A canal from the Colorado River brought irrigation in 1901 and the Valley's year-round harvest now brings $250 million.

Blankenship in good condition

POPLAR BLUFF — Brent Allen Blankenship, 9- year- old son of Mr. and Mrs. Dave Blankenship of Portageville is in good condition in Doctors Hospital following an accident Saturday night in which his clothes caught fire.

The accident occurred at Sam A. Baker State Park near Piedmont when the boy spilled a cup of fuel for a camp stove on his clothing and it ignited. Mrs. Blankenship told the hospital she threw her son to the ground and rolled him in the dirt to smother the fire.

The boy was rushed to the hospital by Piedmont Ambulance Service. He suffered second degree burns on the right shoulder, right hand and about the face, the hospital reported.

Porter was questioned Monday afternoon by New Madrid County sheriff's deputies about the incident.

Sikeston police officers were not convinced that Porter's story was true. They say they doubt he was ever in the ditch. Police pointed out that his shoes were still clean and his clothes clean and unwrinkled, signs that they had not been in water. They also said that some money Porter had hidden in his shoe was not wet beyond the moistness caused by perspiration, also indicating that Porter was not in the water.

House rejects state reorganization bill

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — A compromise bill to reorganize state government was overwhelmingly rejected today in the Missouri House.

The motion to approve a conference committee version of the bill received only 22 favorable votes, and 113 against.

The bill will now go back to conference committee for more work.

The Senate passed the bill 290 Friday.

After about three hours of debate Monday, the House recessed without taking any action.

Democratic House members held a closed caucus this morning and discussed the reorganization bill before the House convened.

After the vote, Democratic and Republican House leaders said they didn't like the provision in the bill that department heads couldn't appoint their own division heads. They also said the bill should be changed to make sure revenue department employes come under the merit system.

The legislature has until midnight Friday to pass the reorganization legislation, called for by the voters in August, or the governor can take action by executive order, subject to legislative rejection.

The bill attempts to reorganize 440 state agencies into 13 new departments and the Office of Administration.

Objections during debate Monday centered on the senatorial power of advice and consent over the directors and some division heads, and on several agencies criticis say remain unmanageable under the bill as it now stands.

House and Senate committees spent five months developing separate bills before it went to a joint House-Senate conference committee late in May.

The conference committee adopted its version of the bill by a vote of 7-3.

Reps. Harold Volkmer, DHannibal, sponsor of the original House bill, and Robert Snyder, R-Kirkwood, refused to sign the committee report and said they would fight the bill on the House floor.

Rep. John Scott, D-St. Louis, also declined to sign the report but told the five approving Senate members he would work for its passage.

Monday, Volkmer and Snyder urged House members to return the bill to conference for more work, or kill the bill.

"This bill is an abortion," Snyder said. "It will allow the same sprawling bureaucracy we have now to proliferate."

Snyder and Volkmer centered their objections on the advice and consent powers which they said will disrupt effective administration.

Rep. Joe Holt, D-Fulton, chairman of the House Reorganization Committee, led the defense of the bill on the floor.

Holt said the bill is not perfect but will allow the governor to manage state government if he wants to.

"I don't think the criticis of this bill understand the powers a (department) director has," Holt said of the advice and consent control over gubernatorial appointments.

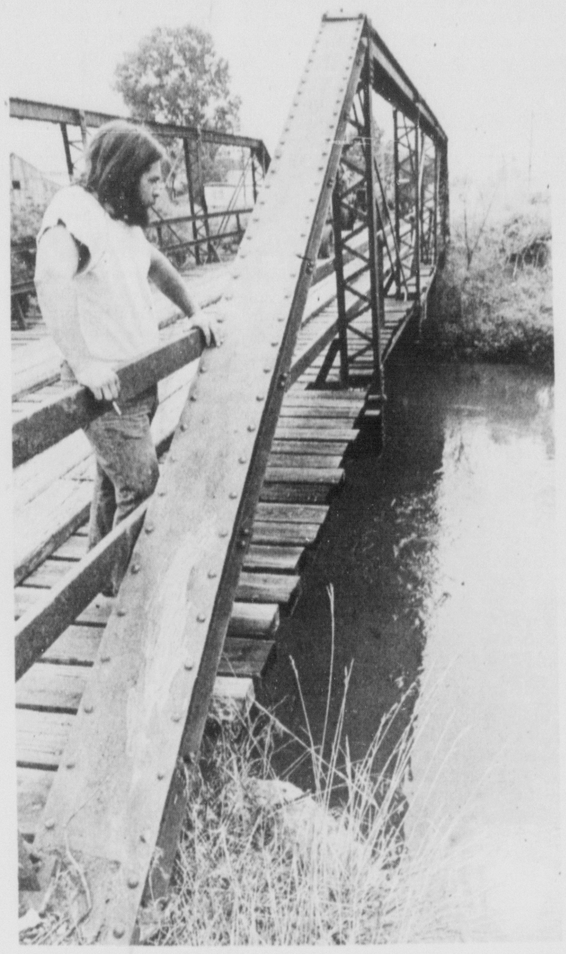
Snyder criticized what Volkmer calls the "double patronage" system set up in several departments including revenue, which requires bi-partisan staffs with exception of directors, some division heads and secretarial employes.

The bi-partisan staffs are a compromise. The House wanted more employes to come under state merit laws. The Senate defeated that attempt earlier in the session with only two members voting for it.

"We're setting up a personnel monster," Snyder said of the new bi-partisan staffs. He said it would have been better to leave the system as it is until the entire merit system law could be changed.

Apparently the Democratic House leadership felt Monday they had enough votes to pass the bill.

They gave up a chance for a compromise committee meeting Monday night when they called a halt to the debate without a vote and laid it over until today.



Views own grave

Floyd Porter Jr. looks over the spot where he was thought to have drowned early Monday morning. Police and fire department officials searched and dragged Wolf Hole Ditch for hours Monday until Porter reported that he was alive and well. Porter told police that he swam to safety after falling from the railing. He said that by this time a friend who was with him had left to alert police. Porter said he then hitched a ride with two men who took him to Ste. Genevieve. Porter said he then returned to Sikeston where he learned of the search for his body.

Hunt ends; man alive

The search for Floyd Porter Jr., 630 Vernon, ended at 4 p.m. Monday when he turned up alive in Sikeston. Police and rescue workers had been dragging Wolf Hole Ditch southeast of Sikeston since about 3 a.m. Monday for his body.

The dragging operations began when a friend of Porter's, Danny Hyslop of Sikeston, told police that Porter had fallen into the ditch from the Malcolm bridge and had not surfaced.

Porter told police Monday afternoon that he had surfaced, swam to the bank and dragged himself out of the water, only to discover that Hyslop had already left.

Porter said he walked to Interstate 55 and was picked up by two men who drove him to St. Genevieve and robbed him of $55. Porter then hitchhiked back to Sikeston where he learned that he was supposed to be dead and he notified his mother who called police.

Porter was reportedly trying to walk across the bridge railing when he fell into the water. He allegedly had been drinking at the

Myers on agriculture board

JEFFERSON CITY— Peter C. Myers of Sikeston and Charles G. Ross Jr. of Caruthersville have been appointed to the 23- member Governor's Advisory Council on Agriculture for 1973, according to an announcement by Gov. Christopher S. Bond.

Myers farms 1,650 acres in New Madrid and Scott counties and raises beef cattle and swine. His farmland production includes soybeans, cotton, corn, wheat and milo. He has lived in the Sikeston area for 18 years.

A graduate of the University of Wisconsin at Madison, Wis., with a bachelor of science degree in agriculture, Myers is a member of the Missouri Farm Bureau, Missouri Farmers Association, Missouri Cattlemen's Association, Missouri Pork Producers Association and the American Soybean Association.

Myers has served on the board of directors of Missouri Farm Bureau, Missouri Cotton Producers Association and the Missouri Cattlemen's Association. The father of five children, he serves as an elder of Hunter Memorial First Presbyterian Church in Sikeston.

For Mississippi County

Airport contract signed

CHARLESTON— Progress on securing the $400,000- plus Mississippi County Airport reached the final stages Monday night with the signing of the formal contract between the Federal Aviation Administration and the Mississippi County Court.

The contract, presented by Herman M. Lindsey of the Kansas City regional office of FAA, was accepted and signed by Presiding Judge W.H. Winchester of East Prairie.

According to Lindsey, $339,866 in federal funds have been committed to the airport project and final engineering specifications are due by Aug. 1. Following approval of the specifications, the project can then be advertised for bids on construction.

James E. Moulder, executive vice president of R.W. Booker and Associates, Inc. of St. Louis, engineering firm for the project, reported the plans are on schedule and should be ready for approval by the Aug. 1 deadline.

Present to witness the signing of the contract were Dr. Lowell Nicholas of Charleston, chairman of the Mississippi County airport commission; Marion Waggener of Charleston, Hunt Wellborn of East Prairie and Kenneth Heath of Bertrand, members of the airport commission; and City Managers Richard Martin of Charleston and Gene Cullen of East Prairie, ex- officio members of the commission.

Former Gov. Warren E. Hearnes, who was instrumental in securing the airport facility, was also present, plus representatives of the Charleston and East Prairie City Councils; members of the County Court; and FAA and engineering officials.

The airport commission has taken an option on approximately 100 acres of land, located southwest of the intersection of Routes C and D and Highway 105 about five miles south of Charleston, from Norbert, John Francis and Mark Rolwing. The Rolwing brothers were also present Monday night.

Included in the airport development will be a 3,200 by 60- foot runway, apron and access road construction and installation of lighted wind cone, segmented circle and beacon, visual approach slope indicator, landscaping and a modest terminal building.

County voters in August of last year approved a $50,000 bond issue to pay the local cost of developing the air facility by a vote of 2,322 to 809. Major selling point for the bond issue was the fact that county taxes would not have to be raised due to a two cent per $100 valuation tax reduction by the County Health Department.

Federal funds of $339,866, state funds of $50,000 and the $50,000 local share make a total of $439,866 available for the facility.

If bids for construction can be let by Aug. 1, construction hopefully can be completed within six months.

Foster grandparent program funded

D.R. (Rod) Miller, president of Rural Missouri, Inc., announced today that a grant of $91,703 has been awarded to Rural Missouri, Inc. by ACTION to conduct the second year of a scheduled five- year Foster Grandparent Program.

The program, which began in August 1972 with an initial grant of $90,172, operates in a seven- county area in Southeast Missouri including the counties of Dunklin, Pemiscot, New Madrid, Stoddard, Scott, Mississippi and Butler, and has its project office in Sikeston. Mrs. Jolene Walker of Sikeston is the local project director.

At present the program operates in the regional diagnostic clinics at Sikeston and Poplar Bluff. Thirty- five foster grandparents have been recruited. Twenty are serving about 40 children in the Poplar Bluff clinic and 15 are serving around 30 children in the Sikeston clinic.

The goals of the RMI-FGP program are:

1. To reach out to the senior citizens in the project area and to draw them back into the mainstream of life;

2. To identify the children in need and to negotiate with the institutions and agencies to bring to each of these children the companionship and compassion of a foster grandparent;

3. To provide an earned income for the elderly poor which will not only ease their living conditions, but will also give pride in accomplishment, and a certain amount of independence;

4. To assist in solving some of the problems that exist in communities such as the so called generation gap; to change the status of elderly poor from 'unemployable financial burdens' to 'contributing community members'; and

5. To restore to the elderly poor and the socially disfunctional institutionalized young a sense of belonging; to help them know that they are a part of what's happening now, that they are not merely spectators watching from the sidelines as life passes them by.

Locally the program is overseen by an 18- member advisory council which continually evaluates and offers suggestions for improvement of the program. One third of this council are beneficiaries of the program.

"The Foster Grandparent Program represents social service programming at its best," Miller said in announcing the grant.

"This money is being spent to provide the means whereby human beings can do work for the general welfare which only human beings can do. We have always believed that this is the kind of work everyone wants and should have. No machine will ever be able to love a socially disturbed child; no computer could ever return the love of a foster grandparent in the way these children do.

"When many people talk of the government's being the employer of the last resort they envision only 'made- work' jobs; digging holes and filling them back up. What they fail to realize is that opportunities for vital creative, and urgently needed work abound in our society. It is to that work that our resources need to be committed," Miller explained.

"The plight of the mentally and emotionally ill, the plight of the aged is a national scandal. Mental patients are sentenced to mere custodial care when love and human compassion are essential to their cures. Elderly persons are similarly put on the shelf when all they need to become creative and productive human beings is the opportunity.

The Foster Grandparent Program is the beginning of a solution to that problem. We are delighted to be a part of it," Miller said.

Rural Missouri, Inc. has been operating various anti-poverty programs in the State of Missouri since 1967. In addition to the Foster Grandparent Program RMI operates six manpower training programs, an economic development program, a Volunteers in Service to America program, a small emergency health services program, and is affiliated with a housing rehabilitation program.

All programs are for the amelioration of poverty among Missouri's rural poor and the major portion of the funding for RMI programs is from the migrant and seasonal farmworker branch of the Office of Economic Opportunity, RMI being one of the direct grantees under Title III- B of the Economic Opportunity Act of 1954, as amended.

The office of the president and central administrative offices of Rural Missouri, Inc. are located in Jefferson City at 418 Madison St.

Sometime in the past the Standard has carried a news item that a bond issue is planned. On looking the thing over and seeing what they are going to build with the money, the Editor has come to the conclusion that he is not in favor of the bond issue. Now, of all the things being considered in there, the only thing that I think we need is probably a North side fire station, and it seems to me, that if the city can find money enough to put on other foolish things they could find $90,000 for the fire station and the pumper. It seems to me that the City Manager, I guess he is competent, but everything he brings up costs money, he never brings up anything that reduces it, of course the rate is being dropped 24 cents this year, from $1.74 per $100 assessed valuation to $1.50, of course then if they vote the bond issue the taxes will go back up. While I don't mind paying the taxes, I am not in favor of paying any increase for foolishness which the proposed bond issue seems to me to be.

HOW SHALL WE
COPE WITH INFLATION?

For the person with money to invest, the problem arises: Where to put it at relatively low risk and reasonable prospects of appreciation? While the national average rate of inflation may be 6 to 7 per cent at a given time, many persons incur a higher rate because of their life style.

For those who live near or above the median on the economic scale, and whose living costs are being pushed up 9 to 10 per cent or more a year by inflation, the 5 to 6-1/2 per cent interest on savings accounts makes little sense as an investment program. Only high quality bond interest ordinarily matches the rate of inflation. Life insurance is necessary for protection, but the premium put into cash value generally appreciates at a lower rate than the average inflationary rate.

Investing in real estate, except for one's own home, can be tricky. The same may be said for trading in stocks of individual companies.

A mystery is the fact that investors have been turning away from one of the soundest methods of investment -- mutual funds -- at a rate faster than new investors have been buying them. Mutual funds have been experiencing net redemptions over the past 14 months, despite their advantages of diversification of holdings, benefits of intensive investment research and professional money management, and an average yearly growth rate near 9 per cent over the past 10 years. Over the last 23 years, 1950 through 1972, the annual growth rate of the average mutual fund has actually been 10.7 per cent, well ahead of the average rate of inflation.

Each person has to figure it out for himself, because the problem won't go away. But nesting a hard- earned egg in a tree stump has been proved improvident.

NEW YORK (AP) — Things a columnist might never know if he didn't open his mail:

Despite their use in spreading terror in horror films, the tarantula is not a particularly dangerous insect. Its bite is not as fearsome as its visage. Unless you have a particular allergy, the bites of some ants, bees and wasps can be more harmful.

The common cold is still the chief enemy of the factory foreman and the office straw boss. From 40 to 50 per cent of all absenteeism is blamed on colds, and the average worker loses four or five days a week because of them. Sixty per cent of the people have from two to three colds a year, and only six per cent go through a year without one.

Here is a fact that doesn't add to our national pride: The United States has one of the highest rates of alcoholism in the world, and alcohol is recognized as the No. 1 drug of abuse in this country.

Quotable notables: "We live but once; we owe nothing to posterity; and a man's own happiness counts before that of anything else." — Norman Douglas.

Dutch problem: One of the woes of traffic cops in Amsterdam is that about 50 drivers a year manage to drive their vehicles into canals. The special police who have the task of fishing the cars out are called grachtenvissers, or canal fishermen.

Puff Puff: Man probably smoked before he learned to read or write. Indians were smoking in South America 5,000 or more years ago, and in Wyoming pipes were used 4,000 years ago. But since tobacco is a New World plant, smoking was probably unknown in the ancient civilizations of Egypt, Greece and Rome.

NEW TOWNS CONCEPT
URGED IN NEW
ENVIRONMENT STUDY

A national policy calling for the creation of New Towns as laboratories for innovative methods to make America's cities more livable was proposed in a new private study sponsored by Laurance S. Rockefeller.

The study, "Man and His Urban Environment," proposes that the New Towns be funded by public corporations, constructed according to a master plan and have a controlled growth pattern.

"This is a continuing inquiry," said Mr. Rockefeller, "designed to ask some new questions, to consider some different aspects of the total urban problem, in the hope of leading toward some new answers." It starts with only one conviction, he said: cities must do more toward adapting to man than, as in the past, requiring man to adapt to the cities.

The report is the result of a three- year investigation, involving a number of authorities, scholars and scientsits in several countries, into the effectiveness of efforts to resolve pressing urban problems.

"The city today is a mechanism full of bugs," the report says, "but a properly designed New Town could privde a clean slate."

Because land use in the new city would be under strict controls, the key problem initially would be finding a working formula under which private enterprise and public requirements could operate compatibly. Hence, said the study, establishment of a public corporation offers great promise. Such a corporation would provide necessary condemnation powers to acquire land, would assist in securing the vast funds needed, and would permit free enterprise to function effectively.

Experiments in such towns, said the report, could lead to new methods and procedures which might be adapted for use in deteriorating cities, just as experiments in Britain's New Towns surrounding London proved helpful in making that major center one of the world's best governed cities.

But despite their success in Britain, the study cautioned against assuming that New Towns "are the best of all possible answers to our mounting population crowding problems," because they will never be able to absorb more than a small percentage of our expected population growth. They are mainly important for developing new management methods and experimenting with new institutions.

A prototype of an experimental New Town project, included in the study, envisions an urban area with a maximum population of 150,000 — about the population of Lincoln, Nebraska, or Jackson, Mississippi. This would be broken down into a series of villages, each with a population of about 11,500. Streets would be eliminated and only one general access route for automobiles and trucks would be provided to the center of town. Housing for different economic levels would be provided. Industry and recreation areas would be located within fixed boundaries. Services such as power, water, sewage and waste disposal would be centralized and would utilize important new technologies.

New Towns, said the study, could be built on four sites: free- standing towns well beyond existing urban areas; in-town towns, an expansion of present urban- renewal model towns; existing smaller towns might be expanded or townc could be created as separate entities; or satellites, on the edge of existing urban concentrations — a course which the report indicates might be the most practical.

NOTORIOUS
LOOPHOLE

Education is a heavy burden on local governments, and taxpayers have shown their resentment. Bond issues and school budgets have been ruthlessly voted down. The head of a major electric company in California now has drawn attention to one way of easing the tax burden on local taxpayers. He appeared before a state legislative committee to urge adoption of a proposed law that would levy an excise tax of 14 per cent upon government - operated electric utilities -- an amount equal to that presently paid by investor - owned electric utilities in the State of California. He emphasized that 78 per cent of Californians pay state and local taxes as customers of investor - owned electric utilities, while 22 per cent of the state's citizens served by nontaxpaying, government - operated electric utilities do not.

The utility executive declared, "In practical terms, this means that some 15 million Californians are being discriminated against, as customers of investor- owned electric utilities because they pay more than their fair share of the costs of schools, local and state government, while the customers off government - owned electric utilities are not similarly taxed." He also stressed the point that while some government - owned electric utilities make payments in lieu of taxes, "... the entire in-lieu payment goes to the city and no payment is made by such utility to support schools, county government or state government."

Tax favoritism of public power projects constitutes a notorious loophole -- a loophole that advocates of government in business and many legislators in other states and the national capital would rather not discuss.

KEEP GOVERNMENT
NEUTRAL

Public assistance to strikers, such as food stamps, welfare benefits, and other payments, is mounting so rapidly that it is expected to cost the taxpayers more than $300 million annually this fiscal year and in the future. What's more, this use of tax funds is a threat to the survival of true collective bargaining.

When management and union representatives sit down at the bargaining table during a strike, economic pressures are always present on both sides: loss of wages by employees and loss of income by the employer as production and sales decline or are cut off completely. Eventually these pressures induce a meeting o the minds.

But the striker is less inclined to go back to work when working taxpayers are providing food for his table and money for the other necessities of life. And strikers put less pressure on unionofficials to settle the strike because the availability of tax funds lessens the strain on the strikers' pocketbooks.

Where tax dollars are used, or merely are available to support strikers, the obvious result will be higher wage settlements than otherwise might be expected.

Taxpayers and the public, in turn, are forced to pay higher prices, withstand diminished production, and might even be faced with a loss of their own jobs, if their employers curtail operations because of a strike.

The use of public aid to enlarge union power is morally unjustified, detrimental to the viability of free collective bargaining, and makes suspect the national policy that the government should remain neutral in labor disputes.

Prices are shooting up astronomically and, according to left- slanted politician and opinion- molders, restrictions on producers are needed yesterday to solve the problem. Farmers and ranchers have lost their clout at the ballot box. Being the most efficient food producers in the world, they have grown so much with so little manpower that they no longer have the numbers to swing very many election precincts in this nation.

Because meat producers refused tax- payer subsidies during lean times, prices were kept low and efficiency grew higher. When skyrocketing wages and demand for meat began to bring a little equity to the farmers and ranchers, the cry went up to punish the producers. Publicity- grabbing people now call for price controls on farmers and ranchers, which is a sure- fire way to bring about real meat shortages. Farmers cannot stay in business if their prices are controlled while their costs continue to shoot up.

Almost 20 years ago the "do gooders" set out to punish producers of oil and gas in the same way they are now attempting to punish our farmers and ranchers. The predictable results will also be the same. That is, if the leftists succeed, you can be sure of ever- tightening shortages of food. The way to stop it is for the citizens to unite, organize and say to the meddlers: Enough; the people will allow no more punishment of producers. If we are to eat, heat our homes, power our factories and move our people and our goods, we must allow the producers to produce the good things of life. Only free people can produce and prosper. HLH

The Welfare Heisters:

Newest State Probes Reveal a 'Shocking' 40% Relief Ripoff by Ineligibles

WASHINGTON— Always there are many loud ones who protect the heisters, and therefore do grievous injustice to the helpless, by crying out against virtually all efforts to drive the thieves out of the welfare system. Sometimes this championing of hundreds of thousands of ineligible charlatans is unwitting and emotional.

Sometimes the good in heart misinterpret the authorities' efforts to save hundreds of millions of needed dollars as a plot to persecute black and other minorities. Let it be known this isn't a black problem. This isn't a Puerto Rican or Chicano problem. Fact is that the minorities are a minority of those receiving any kind of relief including aid to families with dependent children.

But the truth is that at least $800 million is paid annually to ineligible welfare clients. And this is just the tip of the iceberg. That's the figure which can be and has been documented.

July 1 is the deadline for cleaning up this thieves' paradise. There will be loud shouts and booing of those who attempt to explain the need for getting the money out of the pockets of the looters and into the pocketbooks of the needy--- including, of course, the U.S. Treasury.

Fact is that many federal experts have discovered that in some states the rate of such looting, such ineligibility, runs to an average of at least 40 per cent of those on the relief rolls. Some years ago this was discovered in some California districts by the then state welfare director Robert Carleson--- now special assistant to HEW Secretary Caspar Weinberger for Welfare Matters.

Some 10 per cent of America's welfare clients are in California. More than 11 per cent are in New York state. The latter state's Social Services Commissioner Abe Lavine, has been spot- checking some counties in search of fraud and ineligibility. His test experiments pivot on face- to- face verification of welfare clients. Meaning, he has had his probers summon welfare recipients in for interviews on their actual need for public assistance.

Working with random selections, he has found preliminary evidence of a probable 40 per cent ineligibility. At least 40 per cent of those invited in were not showing up, or were calling in asking to be terminated or were patently ineligible. Those who have worked with him report he was "shocked" by what he is finding.

Further, in one New England state the federal people have been working with the governor. He was startled to find that some 47 per cent of the clients have been overpaid an average of $51 monthly.

And in one heavily industrialized Midwestern state, the investigators discovered discrepancies of several hundred dollars in monthly income between what the welfare recipients have reported to the welfare department and what was being reported by their employers to the jobless insurance division.

But the evidence of fraud, or at least ineligibility, is heaviest in New York City--- which has some 9 per cent of the nation's welfare clients. There's a decrease in welfare clients which has been reported for the seventh consecutive month. It took some struggling but the case workers' cadre finally stopped fighting the new computerization and face- to- face verification and recertification checks.

Thus 68,256 persons have been taken from the rolls, mostly for lack of need and eligibility or because "quality control systems" have finally gotten to the crooks. And getting to them is a boon to the helpless, the aged, the families with dependent children. Especially the children. It has been discovered that welfare corruption rots the system, terrorizes welfare case workers, and has caused tragic child abuse, because of the fear among case workers who find it impossible to do their work and fight the looters.

Commissioner Lavine now has warned local welfare agencies that they must recertify in face- to- face interviews all clients within 90 days after they get on the rolls and thereafter in intervals of six months to a year.

Punishment for failure to verify client needs will be refusal of federal and state authorities to reimburse the local communities for money paid to ineligibles. This could cost the local relief offices millions of dollars.

There is no shame in submitting to recertification or original inspection. There is no invasion of privacy, as some labor leaders say. After all, those who apply for Social Security are checked out. So are those who seek veterans benefits. These are truly earned rights. Why should those who seek unearned--- albeit much needed--- relief money not be subjected to the same checkup as those who have paid a Social Security tax most of their lives?

The $800 million lost annually could be ploughed back into the homes of the needy. Some of the money could go into other public services. The trimming of relief rolls would cut administrative costs.

The vast 38- year- old welfare system isn't pennyante stuff. There are, for example, some $5 billion paid out in food stamps, free commodities and meals. And most of this--- which comes to some 3 per cent of the nation's food bill--- should be distributed to the hungry. But what of the food stamps and commodities which are resold? Or, as the "now" generation says, "ripped off"--- stolen by ineligibles.

Washington Merry-Go-Round

By Jack Anderson

JACK ANDERSON SAYS: CRP's Diverted Funds Subject To Taxation

WASHINGTON — Those responsible for the Watergate crime may have to pay taxes on the $1 million in campaign funds that were laid out for break-ins, hush money, legal fees and political sabotage.

Tax experts tell us President Nixon himself is liable if he had knowledge of the disbursements. Even if his aides kept him in the dark, he may still be held legally responsible for the tax obligation.

This is the import of a still-secret General Accounting Office study on the Nixon campaign committees. Quoting tax rules, the study declares that "the expenditure of political funds for other than campaign or similar purposes will be considered a diversion of such funds requiring inclusion in income."

This dry language explains how the Internal Revenue Service is supposed to treat campaign funds that aren't spent for campaign purposes. The new requirement was adopted in 1968 after we revealed that the late Sen. Tom Dodd, D-Conn., had diverted tens of thousands of dollars from his campaign coffers into his own pockets. Dodd was censured, and misdirected campaign funds were made taxable.

Someone Must Pay

Now Nixon's campaign collections have been diverted into improper pockets and spent for illegal purposes. Our tax advisers say someone must pay taxes on the $460,000 at least that was paid to the Waterbuggers to buy their silence and to compensate their lawyers. In all likelihood, the hundreds of thousands spent on illegal compaign activities are also taxable.

If the President can't be stuck with the tax obligation, then the campaign aides who made the pay-outs are clearly liable. They would include Finance Chairman Maurice Stans, the President's personal lawyer Herbert Kalmbach, former Attorney General John Mitchell, White House staff chief, H. R. Haldeman, presidental adviser John Ehrlichman and campaign aide Jeb Magruder.

Our tax advisers say the President may also be in tax trouble over the financial help he accepted from aerosol king Robert Abplanalp to buy the San Clemente retreat.

The Nixons signed personal notes, which Abplanalp later tore up, for $625,000. In return, Abplanalp is supposed to own most of the 26-acre tract around the presidential compound.

Taxable Income

The First Family got the deal approved by the local Internal Revenue office, but our tax experts insist the Nixons should pay taxes on the $625,000. As they interpret the law, the tearing up of the personal notes -- in other words, the cancellation of the debt -- makes the $625,000 taxable income.

They point out that the Nixons are using the entire 26-acres, that property records show no evidence the acreage has been legally divided and that the whole deal appears to be a gimmick to benefit the Nixons.

A spokesman for the President assured us, on the other hand, that Abplanalp is the legal owner of the land around the Nixon compound, that the land is going up in value and that it is a profitable investment for Abplanalp.

If anyone but the President were involved, Internal Revenue surely would be investigating. A spokesman refused to tell us, however, whether IRS is investigating the President or any of his aides on tax matters.

Footnote: The secret GAO report also reveals that the financial arm of the Committee for the Re-election of the President is operating in technical violation of the law. Its charter says it would fold up on May 7, six months after the election. Yet it is still in operation. A party spokesman said the finance committee has had to continue in business in order to deal with cases pending in the courts.

Lavender Hill Mob: Under the innocuous title "Administrative Survey Detachment," retired military spies are continuing to snoop for the Army as civilians. More than 250 former intelligence officers, inconspicuous in mufti, are stationed around the world. They operate out of the Army's main intelligence center, Ft. Holabird, Md., under the direction of Col. Walter Cronin. At least 20 have been sent to Vietnam to run double agents against the north.

Giant Shredder: The Internal Revenue Service, in an apparent economy move, has centralized its massive shredding operation at headquarters. This has ruffled the feathers of some IRS bigwigs who prefer the prestige of having their own office shredder. IRS Programs Chief Richard Wintrode, for example, recently requested a paper shredder for the audit division. Wintrode was told to use "the large shredder located in the basement." The huge Model 22 shredder, which stands nearly six feet high, can grind 600 pounds of confidential memos per hour.

Perot's Wall Street: In March, we told how Texas financier Ross Perot was planning to "take Wall Street to Main Street" by giving a break to small investors at his brokerage house of duPont Glore Forgan. Unfortunately, the last few months have shown that Perot seems more interested in taking the small investor to the cleaners. Documents from inside duPont Glore disclose that brokers there get 40 per cent commissions on big sales, but only 10 per cent of gross commissions on small sales. This encourages them to ignore small customers. Furthermore, we have discovered that duPont Glore has set up a subtle "goal" quota system for their low producing brokers which encourages them to "churn" stocks --buying and selling rapidly to bring in higher commissions. In New York, a duPont Glore spokesmore defended their practices as no worse than those of other houses.

Advertising Association officers

Earl L. Jewe, Standard advertising director, was recently elected president of the Missouri Advertising Managers' Association for the 1973- 74 term. The annual spring meeting was held at the Ramada Inn in Columbia.

In New Madrid County

Valuation tops $66 million

NEW MADRID— The valuation for New Madrid County Property used for tax purposes, according to County Clerk Jesse H. Wilkins, reflects only a three per cent increase over 1972 values. However, despite the small percentage, the increase represents a sum of $1,849,587 which boosts the total valuation to $66,516,587.

The assessor's books filed with the county clerk indicates that farm lands were increased $197,200, while town lots were increased $84,900. The real estate values including farm lands and town lots, now stand at $2,638,135 or $1,135,675 more than for 1972.

The average value per acre of farm land was $78.07 on the 410,693 acres of taxable land, which does not include the 4,017 acres in St. Jude Industrial Park owned by the City of New Madrid. The 10,174 town lots averages $1,006.44 per lot for taxable purposes. There appears to be 9,957 property owners in the county.

Although the county may be minus a few families, according to the census report, it failed to lower the valuation of personal property, which now is assessed a $7,639,656, a gain over 1972 values of $675,900.

Items included are cattle, $36,855, averaging $48.81 each; hogs $5,950, averaging $19.44 each; poultry, $750; farm machinery, $941, 825; household property, $1,465,400; motor vehicles, 10,923, averaging $370.02 for a total of $4,041,750; and all other personal property, $1,147,026. The personal assessment book lists 8,935 different tax payers.

The merchants and manufacturers book carries 447 establishments, seven less than for 1972, with values for tax purposes fixed at $2,158,090, a $38,012 increase over 1972 values.

Railroad and utilities are assessed by the State Tax Commission and current values will not be available until July. However, the 1972 values were $14,080,706. This could be increased due to expansion of Southwestern Bell Telephone Co. facilities. The company now makes up approximately 10 per cent of the total county valuation.

The City of Sikeston is a major contributor to the increases in values. That portion of Sikeston within New Madrid County carries an increase of approximately 42.5 per cent, or $740,232.

Real estate increased by $684,800 to $1,778,950 which includes Kingsway Plaza Mall with real estate and buildings alone valued at $1 million. Personal property increased by $43,410 to the present $302,500; while merchant and manufacturer values stand at $400,991 or $12,022 over 1972 values.

That portion of Sikeston within New Madrid County is expected to carry a total valuation of $2,482,441.

The moose, a member of the deer family, is the largest North American game animal.

Superstructure span begins

BOOTHSPOINT, Tenn.,— The giant steel superstructure of the Interstate 155 bridge that will span the Mississippi River between Tennessee and Missouri has started skyward.

"The first steel in the superstructure of the bridge is going up on top of Pier 23, a land pier on the Tennessee side of the river," said Bill Gigl, project engineer for the John F. Beasley Construction Co. of Dallas.

"We should complete the steel work on the Tennessee side in about three weeks. Then we will move to the land piers on the Missouri side.

"The five spans over the river will be done last and probably will take us from seven to eight months to complete."

Work on the first phase of the $26 million bridge, located about 15 miles west of Dyersburg, was begun in 1969. The bridge will break a 219- mile bridgeless stretch between Memphis and Cairo, Ill., and will connect northwest Tennessee with Interstate 55 in Southeast Missouri.

Travelers who wish to cross the river in the area now must pay $3 to ride across the river on a privately owned ferry or drive to a bridge in Memphis or Cairo.

Cement piers for the bridge were completed last fall by Massman and Johnson Construction Co. of Kansas City, Mo., but high water then brought the bridge construction to a halt.

Steel for the bridge has been docked in the Caruthersville marina during the recent flood.

"We have a crew of 30 ironworkers and equipment operators on the job," said Gigl. "Barges containing steel for the bridge are in the process of unloading now."

Ann Landers

New groom seems to be surrounded by men

Dear Ann Landers: My husband and I have been married four months. We grew up in the same town but never got to know each other until he finished college and came back here to live. We dated a year and then married.

For a while everything was wonderful. I really love the guy and I believe he loves me. But about two months ago his friends began to turn up--- people I'd never met before, and it's apparent to me that they are all gay.

For the past three weeks we have not had one evening alone. His friends are here every night. When we go out to eat he invites two or three to come along. Two of his closest pals have rented an apartment next to ours and if they don't drop in for dinner he goes and gets them. They adore him and have a million laughs. I seem to be out of it. In fact, I sense some silent hostility toward me.

Our sex life is fine but how normal can a guy be when he is surrounded by homosexuals all the time? I am only 23 and must be a lot more unsophisticated than I thought. I keep telling myself I'm imagining things but deep down inside I'm terribly worried. In the meantime I'm becoming increasingly doubtful and resentful.--- Hope I'm Wrong

Dear Hope: Sorry, but I'm afraid your fears are well founded. It's very odd for a new groom to want to be surrounded by friends every night.

As times goes on you will probably discover more evidence that your suspicions are correct and they you must decide what you want to do about it. For now, some counseling might help to relieve your anxiety.

Dear Ann Landers: My sister and her husband are planning a two- week vacation soon. Since they will be going quite a distance by jet it would be difficult to take their two children. (They are under five years of age.)

Mom is going to use up her two- week vacation to stay at home and care for the youngsters. I feel that since Mom has worked hard all her life she is entitled to her vacation and should not be using her time off work running after my sister's kids. They are a handful.

The problem is that Mom will not allow a stranger to care for the children in their parents' absence and feels obligated to take them. Is there some way of solving the problem without starting a family war?--- Innocent Bystander

Dear I.B.: You don't sound like an "Innocent Bystander" to me. You sound like a warmonger.

If your mother would not allow a stranger to watch after her grandchildren and feels obligated to take care of them, what business is it of yours? I don't see YOU offering to take them. And while I am not suggesting that you should, I am suggesting that since your mother wants to, butt out, Sis.

Dear Ann Landers: Why don't some men realize that affection during sex isn't enough? My husband never touches me outside the bedroom. I'd give anything if he'd give me a squeeze, pat my rump, or put his arms around me once in a while.

We've been married 15 years and he's a great guy, but he's a Touch- Me- Not. Please don't say "Tell him." I have told him, several times, and it hasn't helped. Am I expecting too much? Maybe I should count my blessings.--- Tactile Tillie

Dear Tac: Accept the fact that he's not a toucher and don't make a pest of yourself. Yeah--- count your blessings.

There is a big difference between cold and cool. Ann Landers shows you how to play it cool without freezing people out in her booklet, "Teen- Age Sex--- Ten Ways To Cool It." Send 50c in coin and a long, self- addressed, stamped envelope to this newspaper.

St. Mary's Hospital to close

Phasing out of services at the institution which has served this area for about 100 years will begin Friday, according to the announcement.

Reaction from public officials has been one of deep regret and sorrow, coupled with expressed hope that some measures may be taken in the near future to assure the residents of the tri- state area which the hospital serves of the operation of the hospital as a medical facility.

The announcement which the hospital released said:

"Following a meeting on June 7 with representatives of the State of Illinois, the board of directors of Saint Mary's Hospital announced plans to close the hospital by Aug. 31, 1973.

"The phasing out of the hospital service will begin on June 15.

"The Sisters are working closely with the state in the phasing out process.

"During the past two years the increased number of welfare patients and the reimbursement formulae under Medicaid and Medicare regulations have increasingly affected the financial situation of the hospital.

"In the last fiscal year the loss on Medicaid and Medicare patients exceeded a quarter million dollars.

"This, together with a lack of personnel resources within the area, have made necessary the announcement to close.

"During the interim period Saint Mary's will assist the state and other concerned persons in the development of alternate methods to meet the health care needs of the citizens of Cairo and the surrounding area.

"The Sisters of the Holy Cross have provided health care to the area for over a century and deeply regret the necessity of closing the hospital at this time."

The announcement came a little less than four months after hospital officials announced in a public meeting that the facility was experiencing losses and might be forced to close.

Since that time, officials have met with members of Gov. Dan Walker's staff and with local residents.

The announcement came as no surprise to local officials but each one contacted expressed deep regret at the announcement.

"We are continuing to search for any and every means possible to keep the hospital open as a viable medical facility," Joe Bennett, president of the Cairo Chamber of Commerce, said.

"We are aware of the critical situation but we haven't given up hope yet."

Mayor James Walder, when contacted about the announcement said, "We hope that something can be worked out.

"This community needs a hospital. We realize that there are little private funds and apparently little public funds available. But we hope that the hospital can remain in operation."

Dr. Lewis Ent, who has practiced medicine in Cairo for 38 years, said, "It is with deep sorrow that I learn of the plans for the hospital to close.

"We need this hospital."

The Sisters of the Holy Cross, who have managed the hospital, trace the beginning of medical service to the area to the Civil War when nuns staffed the hospital at Mound City.

Their participation and those of others in the area in the hospital's work has been referred to as the beginning of the Navy Nurse Corps in the United States.

Dunklin leads in traffic arrests

KENNETT — Dunklin County currently leads in Southeast Missouri in the number of arrests for hazardous driving since Jan. 1, (399), with Pemiscot County following a close second (394), according to the monthly report from Troop E of the Missouri State Highway Patrol.

There were 53 traffic arrests in Dunklin County during the month of May and 318 traffic warnings, bringing the number of warnings to date to 1,445.

Of the 24 accidents reported in May, only five resulted in personal injuries with 19 causing property damage. There were no traffic deaths.

Dunklin County has had a total of 123 accidents since the first of January with four crashes involving fatalities, 32 resulting in injuries and 87 involving damage to property.

There were no deaths and eight injuries reported for May, bringing the total to five deaths and 64 injuries to date.

Funds approved to finance workshops

KENNETT— State and federal funds totaling $33,600 have been approved for initial financing of the Cotton Boll Sheltered Workshop Corporation, it was announced Monday by Charles Royal of Malden, president of the organization.

The funds were approved by the Governor's Advisory Council on Mental Retardation, headed by Dr. Joe Zimmerman, Kennett. They will be added to some $11,000 in public contributions in Dunklin County to begin the operation of sheltered workshops at Malden and Kennett and later in Pemiscot County.

Royal said he has received written confirmation of the $33,600 grant.

With the receipt of the funds, Royal noted, work will begin immediately to place the two proposed workshops in operation. Because of the immediate availability of a building at the Malden Industrial Park, the first workshop will begin there, hopefully by July 1, the sheltered workshop president said. The Kennett workshop will probably be opened in September when a building at Friendship has been remodeled.

The appointment of an executive committee to assist and guide the workshop manager was also announced by Royal. Members of the committee include Bill Johnson, Mrs. Jane Michel, Mrs. Bob Stark, Lloyd Spalter, Bob Shirley and Royal.

The non- profit workshop corporation is now in the process of securing vans and a two- ton truck for operation of the Kennett and Malden units. Vans will be used to transport employes to and from work, and will be utilized this summer to transport some employes to Malden until the Kennett workshop is opened.

Bloomfield girl wins optometric art contest

JEFFERSON CITY— Robin Patrick of Bloomfield has submitted the winning entry in the Missouri Optometric Association Joy of Seeing Elementary School Art Contest.

Miss Patrick's creation, a drawing summing up the true Joy of Seeing, was selected by the panel of judges over the nearly 3,000 other entries from young aspiring artists from every part of the state.

Robin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Dempsey Patrick of Bloomfield Route Three, is a sixth grader at Bloomfield Elementary School.

She will receive a $100 U.S. Savings Bond Thursday at ceremonies at Gov. Christopher S. Bond's office at the State Capitol.

The second place art work was submitted by Jordan Perry of Moberly, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ray Perry. The third place award went to Sherrie Bray of Joplin Route Two, daughter of Mrs. Nancy Bray.

Fifteen runners- up in the state Joy of Seeing Elementary School Art Contest were also honored for their art work.

A special Missouri Optometric Association Presidential Award was made to James Van Deman of 200 St. Benedict, Florissant, for his entry.

In early March, contest information was distributed to every elementary school in Missouri, and the result was the 2,808 entries received by the contest deadline April 30. In all, 129 towns and communities were represented by entries. The largest single entry came from St. Clair Elementary School at St. Clair, which had 163 art entries. Meta Elementary school submitted 122, and Osage Hills Schools of Kirkwood sent in 121.

J.D. Parks, professor of art at Lincoln University in Jefferson City, headed the state contest selection committee composed of Mary Jo Williams, Lincoln University Art Department, and Mrs. Ruth Hogan, supervisor of elementary art for the Jefferson City School Board, and noted that the judging was particularly difficult because of the abstract theme.

"When you ask an elementary- aged artist to describe his own views of the Joy of Seeing," Parks explained, "you get anyone of a thousand different concepts."

"We tried to judge the entries on not just the artist's ability," he continued, "but on their ability to portray the theme. With so many good entries submitted, it was paramount to keep the contest theme in mind when making the selection."

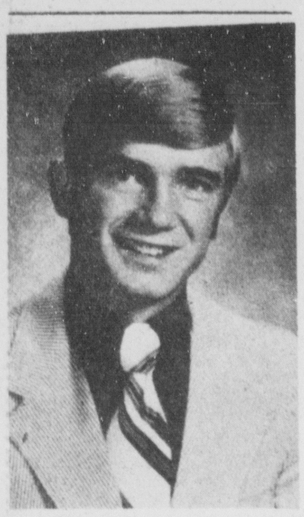
Forty top players named to All-State



Grant Dambach

The Missouri Sportswriters and Sportscasters Association has selected 40 top players from across the state to the Class A and Class AA baseball teams for 1973.

Outfielder Steve Volkerding of the Cape Central Tigers was a unanimous choice for first team honors in 2A. The flashy, hard hitting Tiger is the only repeater from last year's all- state team as he was the only underclassman chosen on the 1972 squad.

Second baseman David Wilfong of Flat River Central was the only other area 2A player to make either the first or second team. Wilfong was picked for the second team.

Southeast Missouri was well represented in this year's voting as eleven players were named to either Class AA or Class A. Eight players received honorable mention on the squad.

This district was well represented on the Class A all- state team as six of the 10 selected to the first team were from Southeast Missouri. Three were named to the second team and one received honorable mention.

Mitchell Walker, Greg Colwick, and John Leible were the Sikeston Bulldogs to receive honorable mention. All three boys are juniors and have another big year in front of them. Leible received honorable mention on last year's squad as a sophomore.

Kelly and Lilbourn were the only two teams to place more than one player on the first team all- state in Class A. State runnerup, Illmo-Scott City, placed three players on the second team along with KC Pem- Day, who took first place in the state.

Grant Dambach of Lilbourn and Dell Walker of Bernie were moved up to the first team after placing on the second team last year. Jeff Jackson, of Kelly, was voted to the first team after receiving honorable mention last year. Ken Urhahn of Kelly and Greg Weeks of Lilbourn were also voted to the first team.

Descriptions of each player's accomplishments:

CLASS AA

STEVE VOLKERDING--- Second consecutive season for the hard hitting outfield of the Cape Central Tigers to make the all-state first team. He batted .419 for the year. He's a 5- 11, 160 pound senior.

DAVID WILFONG--- Ended an outstanding career at Flat River Central by receiving all- state honors. The 6- 0, 220 pound senior has been a hard hitting second baseman for the past three years. He is .321 in nine games this season after hitting .375 his sophomore year and .444 last year.

CLASS A

WES ROWDEN-- He was selected as the catcher for the first team. Wes batted a whopping .425 for the season with 17 hits. A senior at 6- 2 and 190 pounds.

DELL WALKER-- Had an outstanding career at Bernie High School at first base. Dell was selected on the second team last year. He also was a hard throwing lefthanded pitcher for the Mules. He batted an outstanding .585 with 24 hits in 40 times at bat.

He also had a fine slugging percentage as he hit five homeruns, five triples and eight doubles to bat in 24 runs on the year.

KEN URHAHN--- One of two Kelly Hawks to make the elite team. Ken batted .354 in 48 trips to the plate, scored 17 runs and batted in eight. He also was an outstanding pitcher, firing three no- hitters, sporting a 6- 1 record and an ERA of 0.94.

GRANT DAMBACH-- Probably the best shortstop in the area and possibly the state. He was named to the second team last year. He set seven school records this season at Lilbourn High. He led the Panthers in eight departments. Grant batted .591 in 13 games. He hit six homeruns, stole 15 bases, knocked in 25 runs, and banged out 26 hits totjal.

GREG WEEKS--- Has fine arm for the outfield. The best outfielder ever for the Lilbourn Panthers according to coach Mauk. Greg batted .400 with three homeruns. Stole 14 bases and scored 17 runs.

JEFF JACKSON--- Fine all- round athlete for the Kelly Hawks. Jeff is a hard throwing pitcher with an ERA of 0.11 for 61 innings. He fanned 100. Jeff played shortstop when not pitching and led Kelly in hitting with a .545 average and 25 RBI's.

DANNY HOLDER--- Played third base for the Illmo- Scott Rams with a .300 plus batting average.

JIM NOON--- A big hard throwing lefthander that was very instrumental in leading the Rams to second place in the state tournament. He ended the season with a 7- 2 record. Played first base when not pitching and batted over .300.

RAND AMICK--- A good outfielder for the Rams and a fine all- round athlete. Played football and basketball. Was the team leader in both sports. Hit well for the baseball team.

Roberta Flack to star in TV special this month

NEW YORK (AP) — The first time ever I saw Roberta Flack's face she was singing before a packed house at Mr. Henry's, a small night club a few blocks from Capitol Hill in Washington, D.C.

That was in 1968. Come June 19, she'll be singing to a national audience as the star of her own first TV special, a halfhour ABC show called "Roberta Flack...the First Time Ever."

It should be excellent, if her past performances are any guide.

I have to confess I've been a Roberta Flack cheerleader since her Mr. Henry's days. At that time, she had a small, enthusiastic army of fans that included both politicians and established performers.

She sang beautifully, played fine jazz piano and occasionally conducted the best sing-along any saloon probably will ever hear. It wasn't simple barbershop quartet stuff, either.

She'd announce a song, then assign sections of the audience fairly hard contrapuntal harmony parts, the kind that weave around the main tune. It usually sounded great.

Since leaving Mr. Henry's, Miss Flack has racked up one best-selling album and three hit records.

An Asheville, N.C., native whose family moved to Virginia when she still was young, she's a classically trained pianist, a graduate of Howard University's music school and a former schoolteacher.

In addition to her performing and composing, she owns two music publishing firms and is a partner in a production company with singer Donny Hathaway, with whom she recorded her "Where is Love" hit of last year.

What's the law?

The case of the enthusiastic sheriff

By Jack Strauss, LL.B.

Hopalong Schwartz was sheriff of Poker Flats. And while he was an enthusiastic sheriff, his horse wasn't quite as public spirited as he was. While galloping after a pair of desperadoes, his horse suddenly decided that it was too hot to go chasing after bad men.

Pulling up under a spreading chestnut tree, his horse laid down on the cool grass and, placing one of its front hoofs over his eyes to shade out the light, proceeded to go to sleep.

Undismayed, Hopalong rolled out of his saddle and scrambled over to Chester's nearby corral. There he roped one of Chester's more public- spirited horses and continued the pursuit. And while Hopalong never did catch up with the desperadoes, Chester caught up with Hopalong and sued him for horse stealing.

"I don't care if he was chasing Jessie James," he told the judge. "He had no right to take my horse without my permission."

"I sure did," was Hopalong's answer. "As sheriff, I had the right to call up a posse. And, obviously, if I had the right to call up a horse and rider, I had the right to call up a horse without a rider. Any dang fool can figure that one out. Consequently, there's nothing I did for which Chester can sue me."

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you make Hopalong pay for riding off on Chester's horse?

This is how the judge ruled: YES! The judge held that a sheriff is required to furnish his own horse. And while he may have the authority to call out men for a posse, concluded the judge, he has no right to call out just their horses.

The Prayer from the upper room

So teach us to number our days that we may get a heart of wisdom. [Psalm 90:21]

PRAYER: God of our fathers, give us the wisdom to appreciate the past, but not to be limited by its accomplishments. Set our faces toward the future and incline our minds to seek Thy perfect will. In Christ's name. Amen.

NASTURTIUMS – GOOD ENOUGH TO EAT

Every portion of a Nasturtium is good to eat — the flowers, the stems and the leaves are great in salads, while the seeds are delicious pickled.

For a really delicious taste-thrill, snap off the spur of a nasturtium flower and eat it. The combination of sweet nectar and mildly pungent flavor of the plant mingle to produce a delicious taste.

Actually, the entire nasturtium plant, including stems, leaves, flowers and seeds are great to eat. The spicy leaves are good in sandwiches and salads, imparting a flavor similar to garden cress. The seeds make a good winter snack. They grow large as peas and are easy to handle. Just clean and bottle them with freshly boiled vinegar. Then seal and store for winter.

Of course, nasturtiums are beautiful in the flower garden. Choose dwarf varieties for low beds and borders, and tall types to climb up trellis and netting. Flowers are mostly yellow, orange and red on long stems excellent for dainty flower arrangements.

Cultivate soil well before planting seed in spring after danger of frost. When planted in shade or a soil that's too rich and moist, they have a tendency to produce more leaves than flowers.

Children love to plant nasturtium seeds because the seeds are very easy to handle, and the resulting plants have other attractions. For instance, hummingbirds love nasturtium nectar, and if you have never seen a hummingbird in your garden a bed of nasturtiums might well attract them. Two popular varieties of nasturtums are the Gleam and Jewel series. Flowers of Gleam are extra-large and sweet-scented, growing 3 ft. tall with stems long enough to make beautiful flower arrangements. The Jewel series are low-growing — just 1 ft. high, each plant creating a neat dome of flowers and foliage.

Committee deadlocked on elderly tax relief bill

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — A joint House-Senate conference committee trying to work out a "circuit breaker" bill to give tax relief to the elderly, remained deadlocked after its meeting Monday night.

Both sides appear to have tentatively agreed on an income limit of $7,500 for those who would be eligible to receive tax relief. A bill passed earlier by the House let persons with incomes up to $10,000 get relief. The Senate's original bill put the income ceiling at $6,500.

The Senate members prefer a formula whereby the tax credit would be the difference between the property tax bill and 4 per cent of the house-hold income. For renters 15 per cent of the year's total rent would be used as the property tax base.

The House prefers a graduated scale based on tax relief for a percentage figured on total income, allowing renters to get 18 per cent of the year's rent for credit.

The two sides also disagree over the effective date for the bill. House members want the bill to go into effect on Oct. 1, 1973.

The senators are holding out for January 1, 1974.

The senators say the House date would make it difficult to calculate a person's tax on a basis for the entire year, because it would be retroactive.

The Senate members also say the House's 18 per cent for renters might cost the state too much in lost revenues, if there is 100 per cent participation in the program.

Nearly 300,000 persons over 65 are expected to be eligible for tax relief.

House conferees say in other states where such a formula has been tried there has not been over 50 per cent participiation.

Among key legislation yet to be resolved this session is a bill attempting to raise legislators' pay and remove the limits on the number of staff members the legislature may hire.

A bill which would raise the salary from $8,400 to $12,000 and allow the legislature to increase its staff appears headed for a conference committee after the Senate Monday defeated a House porposal to set up a legislative pay commission with voter approval.

The legislature has sent a bill to the governor which would increase the per diem pay from $10 to $25 a day while in session.

The Senate passed and returned to the House an amended bill which would allow thes Public Service Commission to license an estimated 10,000 mobile homes and about 5,000 recreational vehicles.

The Senate passed and returned to the House another bill which would allow foster parents to receive subsidies for adopting hard-to place children. The Senate amended the bill to prohibit the subsidy if the parents moved out of the state.

The House passed and sent to the governor bills that would:

—Prevent insurance companies from canceling auto insurance for any reason other than failure to pay premiums.

—Give state aid to public hospitals to pay off 10 per cent of the hospital's debt.

—Allow the state to issue grants to aid in the formation of sewer and water districts.

The Senate approved and sent to the governor bills to:;

—Make an easement change to straighten a road to a hospital and give the National Guard armory more parking space for the two Cape Girardeau facilities.

—Set the maximum nonteacher retirement compensation for school employes at $10,000 a year and the minimum at $1,200.

time.

Porter was questioned Monday afternoon by New Madrid County sheriff's deputies about the incident.

Sikeston police officers were not convinced that Porter's story was true. They say they doubt he was ever in the ditch. Police pointed out that his shoes were still clean and his clothes clean and unwrinkled, signs that they had not been in water. They also said that some money Porter had hidden in his shoe was not wet beyond the moistness caused by perspiration, also indicating that Porter was not in the water.

Spitler to succeed Young as P'ville city attorney

PORTAGEVILLE — Charles L. Spitler of New Madrid has been appointed city attorney by the City Council to succeed Linus E. Young, who resigned, according to City Clerk Raymond Secoy.

Mayor Barry Richardson, who assumed office May 7, did not ask the council to reappoint Young to the office.

An estimated plan for use of $31,104 in federal revenue-sharing funds has been filed with the federal government.

Secoy said the plan lists 47 per cent for streets; 25 per cent for sanitation, 15 per cent for the water department, 5 per cent for the park, 5 per cent for the police department and 3 per cent for city jail improvements.

Secoy reported repairs amounting to approximately $2,000, including plumbing repairs, are being made to bring the jail in line with sanitary standards.

The city is operating a mosquito fogging machine four times weekly on Monday, Tuesday, Thursday and Friday. Parents of youngsters are warned not to allow children to follow the machine because of the dense spray and concentrated chemicals. Also, motorists are urged to use caution when approaching or following the unit.

The council and chamber of Commerce are co-operating to find space for off-street parking for Main Street employes, so additional parking space will be available for shoppers and others attending to business on Main Street.

Wasteland

In the mid-19th century, California's Imperial Valley was a waterless wasteland "not worth a dollar," according to Daniel Webster.

A canal from the Colorado River brought irrigation in 1901 and the Valley's year-round harvest now brings $250 million.

Blankenship in good condition

POPLAR BLUFF — Brent Allen Blankenship, 9- year- old son of Mr. and Mrs. Dave Blankenship of Portageville is in good condition in Doctors Hospital following an accident Saturday night in which his clothes caught fire.

The accident occurred at Sam A. Baker State Park near Piedmont when the boy spilled a cup of fuel for a camp stove on his clothing and it ignited. Mrs. Blankenship told the hospital she threw her son to the ground and rolled him in the dirt to smother the fire.

The boy was rushed to the hospital by Piedmont Ambulance Service. He suffered second degree burns on the right shoulder, right hand and about the face, the hospital reported.

6 persons injured in area traffic

Six persons were injured Monday in three area traffic accidents, according to the highway patrol.

Georgia Davis, 33, of Wyatt received minor cuts at 1:10 p.m. on Highway 62 two miles east of Bertrand when her car was struck in the side by a car driven by Ed Renner, 47, of Sikeston who the patrol said had crossed the center line on a curve.

Marilyn McLeary, 41, a passenger in the Davis auto, suffered possible internal injuries. She and Davis were taken to Missouri Delta Community Hospital in Sikeston.

Molly Bowles, 17, of Bertrand received whiplash and a chest injuries at 1:12 p.m. two miles east of Bertrand when she stopped her car on HIghway 62 for the previous accident and was struck from behind by a car driven by Bobby Warren, 33, of West Linn, Ore.

Miss Bowles also was taken to Missouri Delta Community Hospital.

Three persons were injured in a one- car accident at 11:30 p.m. 14 miles south of Fredericktown on Highway 67.

The accident occurred when Ernest Clarence Baker, 26, of Shook lost control of his car which ran off the highway, overturned several times and came to rest on its wheels.

Baker received minor cuts, Linda Jane Robinson, 21, of Shook sustained cuts on the hand and legs and a broken collarbone and Charles Edward Piwowarczyk of St. Louis suffered internal injuries. All three were taken to Madison County Hospital in Fredericktown.
